MEXICAN SEAPORT TAKEN AFTER HARD FIGHTING

ADMIRAL BADGER ARRIVED AT MEXICAN CITY AND PROCEEDED TO COMPLETE THE CAPTURE BEGUN BY ADMIRAL FLETCHER LAST NIGHT.

CONTROLS SITUATION AT PRESENT

Fighting Tuesday Resulted in Killing of Four Americans and Wounding of Twenty-one While a Hundred and Fifty Mexicans Died—Mexican Commander Deserted City Early in Fight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Vera Cruz, April 22.—Shortly after one this afternoon it was officially announced that the city of Vera Cruz was under the complete control of the American forces. The fighting today was most desultory and half-hearted, the Mexicans being without leaders and fighting as individuals.

No non-combatants were hurt. According to the dispatch sent to Washington by Admiral Badger, no non-combatants were injured in either today's or Tuesday's fighting. No further list of dead or wounded on the part of the American forces, aside from those reported in the initial engagement is available.

Asks Aid. In Rear Admiral Fletcher's proclamation to the people of Vera Cruz he called upon them in the interest of humanity to co-operate with him in restoring order.

He said they could carry on their municipal government as before and that the United States merely would hold the custom houses and patrol the city.

Reinforcements Land. Re-inforcements from Rear Admiral Badger's fleet were landed today at Vera Cruz with the guns of American warships to aid in taking the entire city of Vera Cruz, according to official advices to the navy department.

Greeted With Shots. Landing parties from the American fleet under Rear Admiral Badger were greeted with quite general firing from snipers when the boats approached the shore at 4:30 this morning.

Canada's Report. Consul Canada today cabled that he expected fighting to cease within an hour, if being nine o'clock then. The total American forces ashore numbered 3,000. They were well into the city and had the situation in hand. The message said that the firing commenced at daybreak, shells being fired on the southern part of the city. A large force landed from Badger's fleet before daylight. Copies of the proclamation issued by Rear Admiral Fletcher requested that the co-operation of the mayor and municipal authorities in restoring order had been distributed, but thus far have been unable to get in communication with these officials.

Maas Fled. It was learned today that one of the main reasons for the fighting of Tuesday was the fact the Mexican soldiers remaining in the city were without any leader. That General Maas, commander of the port, had left early in the day and most of his staff went with him.

Flees From City. General Guadalupe Maas, in command of the garrison at Vera Cruz, left Vera Cruz at noon yesterday soon after the landing of the first boat of American marines. It was officially stated today that he had not been heard from since that hour.

The commander's family followed him in another carriage. It is said that the Mexican troops forming the garrison of Vera Cruz as soon as it was seen that the American marines were about to land were turned loose and told to act as they saw fit. Very few if any of them were officers and they were allowed to act without anyone to direct them.

Ordered Drink. Some of the Mexican troops obtained a considerable supply of intoxicating liquors from two stores. As a result many of them were in a condition which made them extremely dangerous to natives and to whomsoever they came within range. Colonel Cerillo was one of the few officers who remained with the Mexican troops. He was commander of the ninth battalion and was wounded in one arm early in the fighting.

The Mexican troops had only seventy-five machine guns and these were placed in position at the corner of Esteban, Morales and Main streets.

Canada's Report. Consul Canada estimates the number of Mexicans killed and wounded in the fighting with the American marines and bluejackets yesterday as 150, but reports are still very vague. It is believed, however, that the Mexican casualties were greater than those of the Americans who lost four killed and twenty wounded.

This morning's bodies of Mexicans are lying about the central part of the city unburied. Serious fighting on the part of the Mexicans early today appeared to be concluded.

During the night there was an occasional shot from the roofs of houses, sometimes even within the American lines, and it was unsafe to traverse the streets.

Late last night Rear Admiral Fletcher, through Consul W. W. Canada, sent a second message to General Maas in an endeavor to locate someone in command to tell him of conditions and suggest that in the name of humanity he call off his men.

Admiral hesitated to open fire with shell on the city but the presence of rifle men hidden behind the eaves of the flat roof buildings which furnished capital shelter for the defending sharpshooters, made the use of artillery almost imperative to prevent the loss of life of more Americans.

Of the twenty-one bluejackets and marines wounded in yesterday's fighting four are seriously hurt, according to a report from the surgeons today.

JAPANESE GOVERNMENT BELIEVES IN NEUTRALITY REGARDING MEXICAN CRISIS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Tokyo, April 22.—Japanese government officials today declared that the attitude of the Japanese government in the Mexican situation was natural, one of strict neutrality.

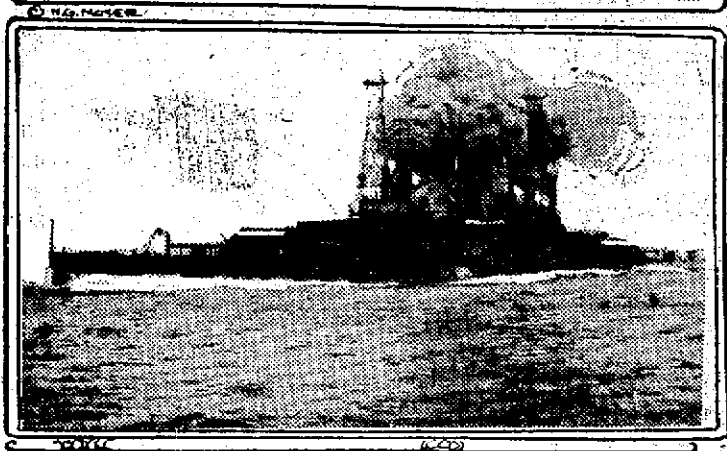

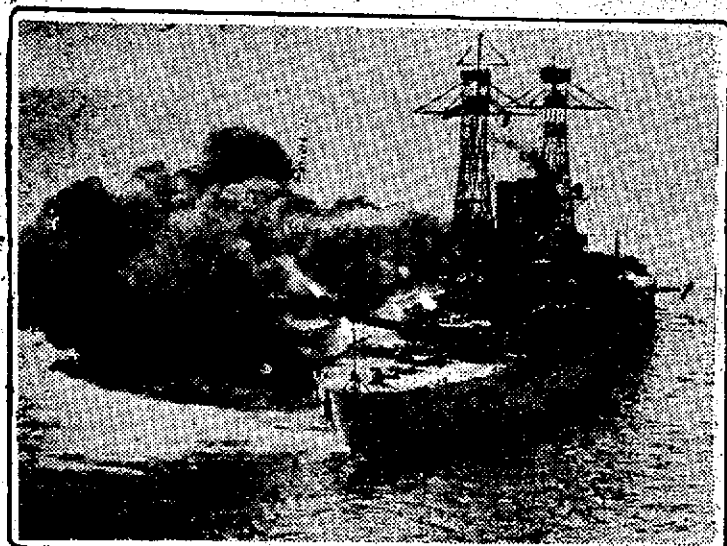

GERMAN GOVERNMENT WILL NOT SEND ANY MORE SHIPS TO MEXICAN WATERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, April 22.—The German government has no intention of sending any additional war ships to Mexican waters, according to an official announcement today.

WILL BRING BODIES BACK TO THE UNITED STATES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—The navy department is arranging to bring to the United States the bodies of sailors or marines killed at Vera Cruz, in order to be made according to the desire of relatives or in a national cemetery, as the families desire. All the expense of transportation will be borne by the United States.

THESE WARSHIPS TO HELP MAKE HUERTA SEE ERROR OF HIS WAYS

New Hampshire firing a broadside (top left), the Michigan and the Nebraska (right). Two of these battleships, the New Hampshire and the Michigan, are now in Mexican waters. The Nebraska will reach Mexico the latter part of next week. The New Hampshire, commanded by Captain Edwin A. Anderson, carries 44 guns and 985 men; the Michigan, commanded by Captain Albert P. Niblack, has 30 guns and 805 men.

WAR APPROPRIATION WOULD NOT BE FELT

President Wilson Asks Congress for Five Hundred Thousand to Bring Americans from Mexico.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—That the United States could finance a war with Mexico and scarcely feel it is the view of authorities expressed here today.

The government's finances are considered to be in excellent condition. In the event of extraordinary expenses which would arise naturally during a state of war, money would be raised, it is pointed out, as it was during the Spanish American war, through extraordinary taxes.

Asks for Funds. President Wilson sent a message to congress asking for an immediate appropriation of $500,000, to be used to bring Americans now in Mexico back to their homes in the United States. The message was referred to the appropriation committee.

Red Cross Ready. A meeting of the executive committee of the American Red Cross was called to be held late today at the war department for the purpose of preparing for emergencies in Mexico.

TWELVE BIG GUNS ON WAY TO BORDER

Further Reinforcements Are Ordered Today for Artillery at Galveston.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Galveston, April 22.—Twelve three-inch field guns were ordered here today from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to reinforce the heavy artillery already waiting at Galveston for orders to proceed to Mexico. The new guns compose three batteries of the field artillery. Twenty-six three-inch guns, all but two of them mountain type, which will be of particular value in Mexico, already are here; all belonging to the fourth field artillery. Plans for the fifth brigade, which consists of 4,500 men, which probably will be the first portion of the 12,000 troops here to move, included at present the taking of two batteries of mountain guns totaling eight. These guns were taken apart for transportation and packed on mules.

BORDER TOWNS SEEK AID FROM SECRETARY OF WAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—Secretary Garrison has received a number of applications from citizens of border towns asking for protection against possible attacks from the Mexican side.

The secretary has referred all the requests to General Bliss, in command of the border patrol, leaving to his discretion the disposition of forces.

MORE BATTLESHIPS ARE NOW IN VERA CRUZ HARBOR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—Admiral Badger has reported the arrival at Vera Cruz of the battleship Minnesota and the navy transport Nantux with marines from New Orleans. The ships had stopped at Tampico and proceeded to Vera Cruz. Admiral Badger reports that he has plenty of marines now to control the situation.

SENATE SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION MEETS APPROVAL OF HOUSE

AMENDED RESOLUTION PASSES SENATE EARLY TODAY AND HOUSE AT ONCE CONCURS.

AUTHORITY TO WILSON

Gives President Power to Use Armed Force to Secure Amends for Injuries—Huerta's Name is Not Mentioned.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—Without debate a bill to give the president authority to use armed force to secure amends for injuries to Americans in Mexico, passed the senate early today and the house at once concurs.

After a thirty minute session the house adjourned until noon. Speaker Clark signed the resolution at 12:03. It was then sent to Vice President Marshall and should reach the White House late today.

In addressing the house in support of the substitute for the house resolution of justification, Mr. Flood said: "It is clear that this country could not be hostile to the Mexican people," said Mr. Flood, "and did not desire to make war on Mexico. The senate amendment made this statement in so many words. The substitute of this resolution, therefore, is unchanged."

"In this momentous hour and in the crisis confronting this country, prompt action justifying an approval of the steps taken by the president is of the utmost importance and it would be childish to quibble over the words of the resolution when the substitute is the same and expresses the views of the president."

Urges Unanimous Front. "I fear that an attempt has been made by gentlemen on the other side to make partisan capital out of the present unfortunate situation before the country has had a chance to express these gentlemen have exhausted their misguided efforts in that direction and that this house will give its support to the chief executive of this nation without a single dissent."

"I do not believe that we are to engage in a war with Mexico at this time was the expression made by the president," said Representative Mann, who followed Mr. Flood.

"Mr. Speaker, if we pass this resolution we have entered on war. Already we have fired arms and killed Mexican citizens. We are already involved in war with Mexico. I believe we ought to be patriotic enough to try to secure peace."

"I believed this 'watchful' waiting policy would involve us in war. I had hoped we might prevent it."

Speaker Clark stood with his hand poised about to attach his signature to the resolution when Representative

THIRTEEN REPORTED KILLED AT TRINIDAD

Delagua Camp Has Ten Fatalities, With Three Guards in the Hills Said to be Dead in Dispatch.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Trinidad, Colo., April 22.—A report at the offices of the Victor American Fuel Co., from Superintendent E. W. Snodgrass said that ten men had been killed in the Delagua camp and that three guards were reported killed in the hills above the camp. Shooting in the hills north of Delagua was reported at daylight. Several bullets struck into camp but no damage was done. An attacking party was believed to be from the Agula district clashed with a party of teen guards stationed at the north side of the camp and in the hills above.

Reinforcements were sent the Delagua camp from Hastings and from the mining camp at Ludlow. The men killed in the camp were Dave Donovan and Carl Johnson. Firing ceased at 3:15.

DETECTIVES CLAIM FRANK IS INNOCENT

Alleged Murderer of Mary Phagan, is Declared Not Guilty of Crime, By National Agency.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Atlanta, Ga., April 22.—Leo M. Frank, under death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, today was declared to be innocent of the crime in a report made public by the head of the national detective agency who had been employed in the case. In the report the detective states that the crime was committed by another employee at the pencil factory of which Frank was superintendent.

OVER 2,000 SWARM TO AMERICAN SIDE

Eagle Pass, Texas, April 22.—Pedro Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, was evacuated by the federals early today after a night of wild excitement. This morning more than 2,000 refugees came to the American side of the Rio Grande for protection.

NEW YORK GUARDS ARE READY FOR EMERGENCIES

New York, April 22.—The commanding officer of the New York national guard regiments began today making arrangements for the immediate provisioning of men and prepared requisitions on the war department for the equipment of field men.

GET FIRST ORDERS TO STATE MILITIA

Adjutant General Asks Wisconsin Officers to be Ready in Case Call Comes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Appleton, Wis., April 22.—The first intimation, either official or otherwise, to be received from the adjutant general relative to the possible call of the state militia, came this morning, the following communication having been sent to all officers in command.

"Arrange it possible with the other officers of the Wisconsin National Guard at your home station who will, in case the call comes to serve, receive and become accountable for such military property, including the balance of the state militia funds in your custody as will not be taken into field service. He shall act also as custodian of the armory in charge of the company officers."

Ready to Serve. Captain E. O. Brown, a member of the Brown Bros. Lumber company and president of the Merchants and Savings Bank of Rhinelander, has sent word of his readiness to serve in the second infantry. Captain Brown is a brother of Congressman Brown, a graduate of West Point and will accept a lieutenant's commission if he can go out with the old regiment. His application has been referred to the adjutant general.

WILL RETURN CARGO OF GERMAN VESSEL

Guns and Ammunitions Consigned to Huerta to be Shipped Back to Germany.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, April 22.—Disposition of guns and ammunition in the cargo of the German vessel Ypiranga, which was held up at Vera Cruz when Rear Admiral Badger took the port, was reported for in a conference between Secretary Bryan and Ambassador Bernstorff of Germany.

The captain of the vessel, being unable to obtain clearance papers for transportation to Vera Cruz, had left the vessel and returned to his former owners in Germany, although the Huerta government had paid in advance for the munitions. The cost of returning the cargo must be borne by the consignors of the munitions. This is in accordance with an international precedent covering such incidents.

ORDER TO MOBILIZE MEXICAN FEDERALS

Troops in the North Will Be Concentrated at Saltillo—Recruiting Stations Buy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Eagle Pass, April 22.—All federal forces have been ordered by General Bliss to concentrate at Saltillo to "repel the American invasion."

Last night when the people of Pedra Negras learned that the American marines had occupied Vera Cruz, a dozen officers' headquarters were opened and volunteer companies secured arms as fast as organized. More than 200 volunteers were recruited during the evening.

MADISON GIRL KILLED IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., April 22.—Ruth Wiers, of this city, who was struck by a motorcycle yesterday, died last night. The family do not hold the rider of the motorcycle, Morris Clark, accountable as he apparently was what he could to avoid the accident.

NO TRUTH TO REPORT CABINET OFFICERS RESIGN OFFICIALLY STATED.

NEXT MOVE A PROBLEM

Probable That Tampico Will Be Taken As Vera Cruz Has Been—Army and Navy Departments in Close Touch With Affairs.

Washington, April 22.—The president had hoped that the seizure of Vera Cruz might have been accomplished without loss of life. He had declared, however, that there shall be no backward steps. He is trying to avert war and to prevent bloodshed, but he realizes that the American people want to see the honor and dignity of the flag upheld.

For the present the United States will content itself with holding the custom house at Vera Cruz, collecting duties and preventing shipments of arms from reaching Huerta.

Tampico is the next objective point. It has not been decided whether a blockade will be maintained there or the custom house seized. The passage of the resolution in congress has given the president the feeling that he is justified in going ahead now with aggressive steps, but he wants to await the full effects of the operations at Vera Cruz, which he hopes will bring the Mexican forces to terms without further armed conflict.

Held Conference. Secretary Bryan conferred with the president early today. He, too, showed a different demeanor. His face was ashen white and he denied the report in connection with the resignation of Charles Elgar, who had been given his passport.

Mr. Bryan said he had been in communication with Mexico City late yesterday and that the dispatches were against Americans. He said O'Shaughnessy's dispatch was filed late yesterday afternoon.

Announce Capture. The White House gave out the following statement at the embassy today: Consul Canada, Vera Cruz at 1:10 p. m., announced that the American forces were in complete control of the city. That no fatalities of Americans and non-combatants, and that no firing except from occasional pickets.

Secretary Bryan went to the White House at 1:15, and said he had received no word from O'Shaughnessy since Monday. The last message from Mexico City came from the American consul late Tuesday forenoon. Mr. Bryan appeared worried and called him to report about conditions in Mexico City. He said, however, he was assured that if anything had happened to O'Shaughnessy other legations in Mexico City would have through their home governments informed the United States.

Reports have come that the telegraph wires from Mexico City to Vera Cruz had been cut yesterday and which would probably account for lack of information.

No Official Break. Senor Elgar, the Mexican chargé d'affaires, said at the embassy today that he had received several messages from his government which indicated that he might be recalled at any moment, but that he had not yet been ordered to ask for his passports. He looked for such an order to come at any time, he said.

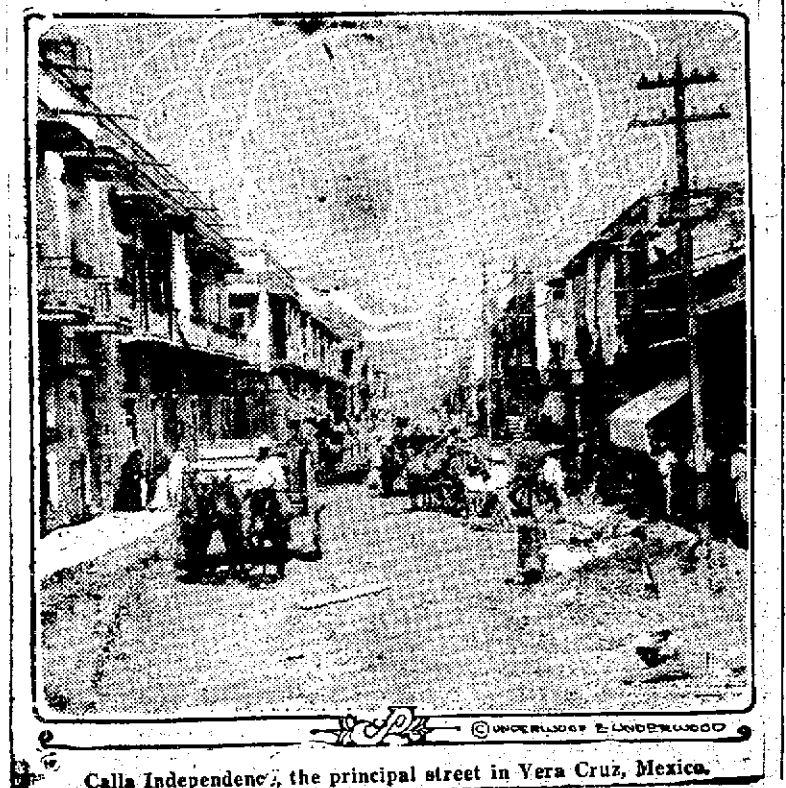

Secretary Bryan denied that Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy had been asked by Huerta to leave Mexico.

Interest Tense. The White House requested the publication of this statement: "Secretary Tumulty denied emphatically today as wholly unfounded the report that any member of the cabinet contemplated resigning. He said this subject had not been considered by the president or by any member of the cabinet, and it had never been discussed."

This statement was issued in connection with a report that Secretary Bryan was about to resign.

Interest Tense. Interest in the navy department was tense this afternoon and the report

West coast—Acapulco, Guaymas, Mazatlan, Manzanillo, Alta Rosalia, San Blas, Topolobampo, Salina Cruz, Pochutla.
The effect of the blockade may be to put an end to Mexico's trade with foreign nations. This trade during the fiscal year 1909-10, just before the Madero revolt, amounted to $223,000,000. The value of the exports was $130,000,000 and of the imports $93,000,000.

BULLETINS SENT OUT

Dozen or More Places in City Where Latest Dispatches Are Displayed—Extra Editions Issued.

Within twenty minutes after the news was received at the Gazette office last evening telling of the first firing and bloodshed in Mexico, the six o'clock extra edition was on the street giving the all too meagre details to the Jamesville public.

Later in the evening a somewhat fuller dispatch was received and was given wide publicity throughout the city. Bulletins were posted at the following places: Gazette bulletin board, George Dirig's Smoko Shop, Miller Bros. cigar store, the Harry Thometz and E. B. Connor saloon, Delaney and Murphy cigar store, Grand hotel, Gazette bulletin board on South River street, and on the advertising screen operated by Ben Louthain on Milwaukee street bridge. The news was also read at the session of the Twilight club at the Y. M. C. A. banquet hall and to the Spanish war veterans who were holding a special meeting. Bulletins were also posted at Broadhead, Evansville, Edgerton and Milton Junction.

Last night's early bulletins received by the Gazette told practically all that there was to know regarding the first clash between the Americans and Huerta's troops. The morning Chicago and Milwaukee papers had little to offer in addition.

The Gazette's prompt service comes through the Associated Press office at Milwaukee. Nearly 5,000 words of live news on the Mexican situation was received over the wire on Tuesday and gave the Gazette readers the very latest and most accurate report of the war in the regular issue Tuesday evening. Effort will be made to keep the Jamesville public informed on the course of events. Extra editions will be put upon the street promptly if the dispatches warrant it. At any rate, but one day of delay.

The Gazette also calls attention to the exceptionally fine pictures, of battleships, war scenes and photographs of his admirals, ship captains, ambassadors and all persons prominent in the affairs of the present war crisis. The Gazette's connection with an up-to-date minute newspaper service makes possible the timely publications of these interesting pictures.

The Milton college debating trio, Haddock, Gesler and West, won in the contest against Ripon college, two to one. They had the negative side of the question "All state judges should be subject to recall by the people." This is the second victory the Milton boys have won against Ripon.

GOODMAN IN CHARGE OF CITY STREETS

City Council Officially Appoints P. J. Goodman Superintendent of Streets—Inspect Quarry.

At the council meeting yesterday afternoon Peter J. Goodman was officially appointed superintendent of streets and head of the city department on highways, sewers, parks, bridges, public improvements and public property.

Goodman yesterday named Thomas McKune and James Sehnet as foremen, McKune having charge of the street department on the west side and James Sehnet on the east side of Rock river, as under the administration of C. K. Mitmore.

Numerous orders for street improvements were passed by the old council, including the letting of the contract for the paving work in the Third ward and curb and gutter improvements. This morning the council inspected the city stone quarry with the view of deciding on whether to resume the stone crusher in obtaining crushed stone supply for the work, as investigation has proven that enough suitable gravel is obtainable for this summer's work on the streets.

Orders were passed for curb and gutter improvements on Linn street from Pleasant street to Western avenue; Glen street from Milton to Garfield avenue; Garfield, from Oakland to south line of lot 16 of the Forrest Park addition; Franklin, from Pleasant to Galena; and Jackson street, from South Third to Garfield. No action was taken on the work on Carroll street because of the protest made, but a report will be made later.

City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund was instructed to advertise for bids on a contract for painting the mountains at the Corn Exchange and Coal Exchange. The covers on both fountains were removed by Councilman Goodman this morning.

Members of the council are considering erecting a gravity storage bin for the storage of street material, as the greatest cost in this work is in the handling of the material, and it is planned to have a bin into which material could be dumped and held until needed. Cost of loading and unloading is very expensive and by building the storage place so that wagons could be loaded by gravity, the city would be saving a large amount yearly.

Tests are being made by City Engineer C. V. Kerch of the physical properties of the eight samples of oil submitted to the council by the companies seeking the contract for the oil supply for the city during the year.

WASHINGTON WAITS LATEST WAR NEWS FROM FIRING LINE

That the diplomatic relations between the two countries had been broken off—one of the last moves before an actual state of war—caused additional excitement. At the White House and official members of congress and others appeared eagerly for information from the front.

President Wilson reached his office early and conferred with Secretary Tumulty. Anticipating that all of his time would be taken up with the Mexican crisis the president declined to receive callers and regretfully cancelled an engagement to receive a delegation of women from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"I am sorry, terribly sorry," were President Wilson's words when the news of the loss of life in taking Vera Cruz was reported to him. Today the president was sad and disheartened as he walked slowly to his office through the White House. His head was bowed and his face showed great feeling.

Admiral Badger Arrives. Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the Atlantic fleet, officially reported to the navy department today the arrival at Vera Cruz of his flagship, the Arkansas, along with the battleships Vermont, New Jersey, and the South Carolina. HISTORY OF MEXICO IN A TABLOID FORM

DEFEATED BY THE UNITED STATES IN THE LATE FORTIES.

CENTURIES OF TROUBLE

Since the Spanish Conqueror First Landed On Its Soil Seeking Gold and Riches.

Since Cordova, the Spanish explorer, first saw the shores of Mexico in 1492, watched the natives with their golden ornaments, and told his story to the lustful adventurers at home, Mexico has been the scene of one conflict after another. The following year Cortez, with a band of Spanish soldiers and gentlemen, landed on Mexican soil and began the conquest of the Aztecs, and the rule of oppression and slavery that lasted from that period until 1821 when the Mexicans finally threw off the Spanish yoke after a war of eleven years and declared themselves free. This vast territory, known as New Spain, then covered what is now the states of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Utah, and part of Wyoming and Colorado. The first break came in 1835, when the American settlers in what is now Texas revolted, defeating Santa Anna in 1836, and declared themselves free and independent, with Sam Houston as president. Later this vast territory was annexed to the United States and the question of boundary, which led to the acquisition of New Mexico, Arizona, Upper California, Nevada, Colorado and parts of Colorado and Wyoming after a conflict at arms and the payment of some fifteen millions of dollars.

The Mexican War.
Just at this time this other Mexican war is most interesting and the following brief resume of the struggle taken from the Chicago Record & Tribune gives the story in condensed form:

Even after war was certain to come in 1845, the government did not believe it would be more than a brief conflict. Mexico would be driven south of the Rio Grande, the boundary claimed by the United States, and that would end it. So General Zachary Taylor, with 1,500 men, marched into the disputed territory and arrogantly took possession. His first battle was fought May 6, 1846, when the Mexicans attacked Fort Brown, where Brownsville, Texas, stands. Nearly a year after that he fought steadily southward before the United States realized that the City of Mexico must fall before the war would end.

General Winfield Scott was assigned the task of capturing the Mexican capital. With an army of 13,000 men he sailed for Vera Cruz early in 1847. A strong fleet of naval vessels, commanded by Commodore Conner, accompanied and guarded his transports.

Knew Little of Country.
General Scott was considerably handicapped by lack of maps and information concerning the country. When he was to fight, he took aboard his ship he summoned a council of generals and told them the only campaign plan he had prepared was to get there quickly and with the least possible loss.

Scott and Conner arrived off Vera Cruz early in March. Scouting parties were landed and the advisability of taking the land fortifications of the city by storm was discussed. The Mexicans began to disembark. Four days later the fleet and army had the city invested and preparations for an assault were started.

The fortifications of the city and the castle of San Juan de Ulloa, a heavily entrenched position, were shelled by the ships. Scott placed his heavy artillery and joined in the attack from the land side. Several times attacking and retreating, the Mexicans were carried by assaulting parties. In a couple of weeks the commanders decided that their troops were seasoned enough to attempt storming the city. A general attack was made on March 27 the castle and garrison surrendered.

Advance of Santa Anna.
General Santa Anna all this time was hastening from the north to meet Scott before he could turn his attention to Vera Cruz. He reached and crossed the range of mountains known as the Eastern Cordilleras and went into entrenched camp at Cerro Gordo, a pass on the eastern slope of the range. Scott did not allow him much time.

General Twiggs with one division of the army left Vera Cruz, April 5. Scott followed immediately. Ten days later the two armies met at Cerro Gordo. Scott had about 8,000 men in the fight against Santa Anna's 12,000. The invaders also were handicapped by being the attacking force.

The fight lasted one whole day. Until nearly noon it was an even engagement. Then the Mexicans began to waver and by nightfall they were routed. The Mexicans lost 1,000 and the Americans 430 killed. The next day the Americans marched into the town of Jalapa.

Santa Anna evidently believed Scott would wait there for reinforcements. Instead Scott pushed forward and April 22 stormed Castle Perote on the summit of the mountain range. Perote was considered an impregnable fortress.

Reinforcements now joined Scott. He pushed on to Puebla, the most important city between Vera Cruz and the capital, and there went into camp, May 15.

Peace Negotiations Fail.
An attempt was made by the United States government at this time to end the war by diplomatic negotiations. Scott entrenched his force and spent his time until August recuperating his men and bringing up supplies of ammunition and in other ways perfecting his hold upon the country he had conquered. Peace negotiations failed through, and early the second week in August Scott took the field.

He advanced from Puebla and looked down for the first time on the Valley of Mexico and from almost the same spot that Cortez had centuries before. On August 20 occurred the battle of the most sanguinary battles of the war. At five o'clock that same day, United States soldiers with bayonet and rifle, stormed fortified positions held by superior numbers of Mexicans. Any one of the positions could have been held easily by a smaller force than the attacking troops.

Early in the morning the United States infantry drove the Mexicans back from Contreras after a brisk engagement. Then another column attacked the fortified position at San Antonio. Simultaneously a strong detachment assailed the Convent of San Pablo, which had been turned into a fort. Both positions were carried.

The two bloodiest conflicts of the war took place at Churubusco and at a bridge over a causeway a mile from the town. A redoubt had been built by the Mexicans to hold the bridge. Scott sent three regiments of infantry to carry it with the bayonet. The

WHAT'S NEXT IN MEXICO?

Mexico, torn by forty-six revolts in the last 113 years, now faces trouble with its most powerful neighbor. Of these revolts twenty-two have been successful in themselves and disastrous for the men who led them. Three of these leaders were forced to flee the country and two of them, Vincente Guerrero and Francisco Madero, were assassinated. The successful revolutions were:

February 24, 1821—Spain loses Mexico and Augustin de Iturbide elected president-regent twice and in 1822 crowned emperor.

May 11, 1823—Emperor Iturbide defeated by Santa Anna.

January 12, 1829—Revolution headed by Santa Anna results in election of President Guerrero and his inauguration in April.

December 4, 1829—Revolt by General Bustamante results in his election as president a year later.

December, 1832—Santa Anna revolts against Bustamante and Manuel G. Pedraza is made president.

December, 1833—Two-year revolution led by Santa Anna results in his being declared dictator.

April 29, 1837—General Bustamante appeals to people and is elected president after several small uprisings.

July 15, 1840—Mexico City entered by General Urrea, who proclaimed himself president.

August 8, 1841—Revolt led by General Paredes results in issuance by him of final pronouncement against Bustamante.

December 6, 1844—General Herrera assumes government.

December 14, 1845—General Paredes deposes President Herrera.

August 4, 1846—General Jose M. Salas ousts Paredes.

July 27, 1852—Revolt started by General Blancarte and return of Santa Anna as president is announced. President Arista resigns the following year.

July, 1855—General revolt shakes the country and Santa Anna flees. October 4, 1855—General Juan Alvarez made president and succeeded by Ignacio Comonfort.

January, 1858—Comonfort is betrayed by his friend, Zuluaga, who becomes president when Comonfort flees.

1861—Benito Juarez returns to Mexico, leads revolt and becomes president.

November, 1861—Maximilian proclaimed emperor upon the landing of the French.

July, 1867—Juarez leads another successful uprising and again becomes president.

1868—Revolt headed by Porfirio Diaz ends in death of Juarez.

November 16, 1876—Diaz assumes presidency.

November 6, 1877—Revolt against Diaz led by Francisco Madero, who becomes president.

February 18, 1913—Victoriano Huerta proclaimed president after the fall of Diaz.

February 23, 1913—Madero assassinated, supposedly by Huerta's henchmen.

April 9, 1914—Assistant United States paymaster and complement of men from the gunboat Dolphin arrested by Huerta officers at Tampico. Apology demanded, but not forthcoming.

April 14, 1914—Two fleets of United States battleships ordered to Mexican waters.

April 21, 1914—Huerta defies the United States and President Wilson decides on war measures.

April 21, 1914—Congress authorizes President Wilson to use armed forces in Mexico.

To renew neglected houses!

On the racks of the real estate dealers you will see listed buildings that are difficult to sell or rent—remain listed for a long time—and probably untenanted for a longer time. When you seek the cause, you will discover it is almost invariably that a Fitter has not been called in to lift such buildings from the neglected class to the desirable list by putting in a comfort-yielding, labor-saving, fuel-economizing outfit of

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

Old or new buildings—farm or city—can be equipped on shortest notice by any dealer, with these two comfort-givers—IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators—which change any house into a home, entirely freeing the rooms from the ancient heating pests of coalhohd lifting, fire-poking, ash-dust, coal-gases, blackening, annual storing, repair bills, etc.

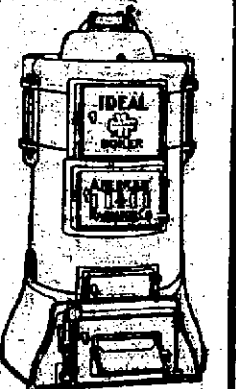

The several hundred thousands of these outfits installed in America, Europe, Australia, South Africa, and Japan, are so comfortably, economically, cleanly and healthfully warming the occupants of all classes of buildings that buyers and renters are now insistently demanding them. IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators save so much in coal and cleaning, in time and temper, in health and happiness, and without rusting or repairs, that they quickly repay their cost. In all the world they have no equal—hence their wide use in the last several years in cottages, farm houses, mansions, schools, churches, stores, public buildings, etc.

A No. 4121 IDEAL Boiler and 420 sq. ft. of 34 in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $210, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable competent fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

Old fashioned heating devices are short-lived; while IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators having no thin drums to burn out or rust out—no riveted joints or parts to warp or spring loose, will work and wear as long as the building lasts, and no yearly repair bill!

All real estate men will tell you that IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators will attract and hold best tenants at 10% to 15% higher rental, or property sells quicker and owner gets back the full cost of the heating outfit. Money put into these outfits is there for an investment—not an expense. Accept no substitute. Ask for free, valuable catalog: "Ideal Heating" it will save you heating dollars. Write, phone or call and let us tell you fully. Feel free to inquire—it does not obligate you in any way.

IDEAL Boilers make every pound of fuel do its utmost heating work. They do not rust out or wear out—these are a paying, lasting investment.

Another great labor-saver—ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner
You can wonderfully reduce house-labor and highly increase home health and cleanliness by use of ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner—sets in basement; works through iron pipe running to all floors; carries all dirt, dust, insects and their eggs, etc., to sealed bucket in machine; cleans carpets, furnishings, walls, ceilings, clothing. Ask also for new "ARCO WAND" catalog (free). Inquiry puts you under no obligation to buy.

THE NEW YORK, THE WORLD'S GREATEST DREADNAUGHT, GOES INTO COMMISSION

The flag raising on the battleship New York.

Unusual significance attached to the flag raising on the battleship New York last week. The flag raising officially put the monster sea fighter into commission, although she had not had her efficiency tests. It is believed that had conditions grown more menacing in Mexico she would have been hastened south at once.

A SECTIONAL SUITCASE

Its Capacity May Be Altered as Circumstances Demand.

This might be called the sectional case, from the variety of applications of the principle of building up furniture, houses and other things in units to be added to as desired. The latest contribution to this group is the sectional suitcase, the capacity of which may be made to meet the exigencies of the occasion. For an overnight trip, for instance, a single section of the combination would answer all demands, whereas for a longer stay abroad, greater storage capacity would be required, and in such an emergency the twin units are locked together and some minor rearrangement of the handles made, when the combination becomes to all intents and purposes a single piece, having much the same appearance of a dress suitcase of the type with which we are so familiar.

How Estimate on the Jokesmith.
"A wag in the Starbeams column recently referred to my poetical paragraphs as 'larceny'—a trifle disgruntledly stated Tennyson J. Duff. 'Huh! If he considers my lyrics and limericks larceny, what would he call my runes and sagas? Aw, well, it doesn't matter, for the jokesmith is the lowest form of human life, anyhow, and only useful to show to what extent foolishness may go without being funny.'—Kansas City Star.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair and somewhat cooler with probably light frost tonight. Thursday fair with slowly rising temperature.

THE DIE IS CAST.

By the landing of the marines at Vera Cruz, Tuesday, the selling of the custom house, the railroad depots and the cable office, it would appear as though the die had been cast in favor of a war with Mexico. Meanwhile in Washington the senate quibbled over mere technicalities of wording of the granting the request of President Wilson and good red American blood was being shed in defense of the honor of the flag.

It war must come let the United States go into the struggle prepared for the possible eventualities that will surely follow such a struggle. It will not be Huerta and Huerta's forces alone that will confront the United States but every Mexican, be he rebel or federal. It is going to be a long drawn out affair. No mistake should be made as regards this. It will not be a picnic excursion, no long summer camps of instruction in the southern country and then marching home next fall and being mustered out as in Ninety Eight, but real genuine fighting.

This is not going to be an Opera Bouffe war. The Mexicans have become so accustomed to fighting that many prefer it to any other occupation. They are well equipped with modern rifles, with latest rapid fire guns, and well supplied with ammunition. Both rebels and federals will resent the invasion of the United States. It was to avoid the combination of these two forces, to avoid complications of this nature that might arise, that led President Wilson to direct his address of Monday directly at Huerta, and not the rebel leaders Villa and Carranza. The Senate thought otherwise and has delayed matters until the President had to act on his own responsibility and in consequence American marines are in Vera Cruz and the American flag waves over Mexican government buildings.

There is no step backward now and the sooner the people of the United States realize this fact the quicker the solution will come. The country must stand behind the president and his administration and do everything to further the interests and the honor of the nation. It is the duty of every citizen to do his utmost in this direction at the present time.

SNAP JUDGMENT.

The American public is too often prone to take what might be termed a snap judgment of public officials. One side of a question is too often given publicity without the other side being heard. This is particularly true of cities where the administration of government is in operation. Under the recall law of the state it is most easy to find any number of discontented persons who will sign a petition for the recall of any one or more city officials because they differ with their policy personally. It is a form of snap judgment that is injurious to the general welfare of the entire community. It would be impossible to please all the people all the time. Someone's toes must be trod upon and their personal feelings injured. It is in the due course of affairs. However the general public should not listen to the wailings of these malcontents and pass a snap judgment upon the government as a whole, but probe carefully into the reason and cause for complaint before considering taking sides in the controversy.

THE WATER WORKS.

May 12th is the date for the special election to be held in Janesville as to whether the Janesville water company plant shall be purchased and operated by the city of Janesville at the expense of something like three hundred thousand dollars. This is a question that affects the pocketbook of every taxpayer. If they wish to pay increased taxes for a concern that will need thousands of dollars worth of repairs long before it has been paid for, then it is up to them to do so. However, each voter should acquaint himself with the situation before voting favorably on the question.

The new council is now in working order. The police department has a new captain in charge, the retail liquor dealers have perfected their organization so things ought to start running smoothly once more.

In this rush of war news do not forget that next August Janesville will hold its first annual fair and it is going to be a stem-winder, too.

Duty Plain.

You know your duty. No man ever looked for it and did not find it—Phil Lps Brooks.

SENATE SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION MEETS APPROVAL OF HOUSE

Representative Flood, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, moved that the House concur in the senate justification resolution when the session resumed after recess. He urged that there be no conference.

Pass Substitute Resolution. The senate substitute resolution on the Mexican situation which passed early today, 26 to 13, read as follows: "In view of the facts presented by the President of the United States, in his address delivered to the Congress in joint session on the 20th of April, 1914, in regard to certain affronts and indignities committed against the United States in Mexico, be it resolved:

"That the President be justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demand for an unequivocal amendment for the affronts and indignities committed against the United States. Be it further resolved that the United States disclaim any hostilities toward the Mexican people or any purpose to make war upon them."

House Gives Concurrence. The House concurred in the substitute resolution justifying the President in the use of armed forces in Mexico. There was no debate and the viva voce vote was almost unanimous.

ASK ARCHITECTS FOR THEIR SUGGESTIONS

Builders and Fire Chiefs From Fox River Valley May Offer Opinions On New Building Code.

Madison, Wis., April 22.—Fox River architects, builders, fire chiefs and others will have an opportunity tomorrow to offer suggestions for the new state building code. The legislative commission will hold a public hearing on Thursday at 2 o'clock at the Oshkosh city hall, at which the code will be fully discussed. This is the only morning that will be held in the Fox River Valley and all residents of neighboring cities who are interested in the proposed code are expected to attend.

The code, with fire protection and sanitation in places of employment and public buildings, including factories, stores, office buildings, theatres and halls, schools, hotels and apartments have been sent to architects and builders throughout the state and the Industrial commission is inviting all interested persons to submit criticisms before the code is finally adopted. Public meetings were held recently in Superior and Eau Claire, at which the city officials, as well as the architects and builders, agreed that a state building code would be a great benefit to the local officers in securing proper fire protection and sanitation. At the same time they made a number of criticisms on particular parts of the proposed code. The Industrial commission expects the Fox River Valley people to be equally frank with their criticisms, as it desires the cooperation of local fire chiefs in enforcing the code after it has been finally adopted.

LITTLE POORHOUSE INMATE MAY BE GREAT OPERA STAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, April 22.—When, owing to her sunny nature, little Mabel Clarke burst into song the other day at the poorhouse, she never imagined that her voice would raise her from the uninspiring vocation of household drudge branded with the stigma of the pauper to future comfort and probably fame in the operatic world. Mabel is just 11. Her parents died recently leaving her homeless and penniless, she was taken charge of by the West Ham Board of Guardians. As usual with girls of her class she was put on household work with a view to training her as a domestic servant. Shortly afterwards some of the Guardians while visiting the infirmary heard her singing. The dainty walls had never echoed such melody before. The Guardians immediately sent for her. They were not expert judges of music, but they realized

MYERS THEATRE WILL PLAY VAUDEVILLE ON FOUR NIGHTS WEEKLY

Western Vaudeville Managers' Association to Book Janesville House Same as Minneapolis.

Frint George, representative of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association, visited Janesville Tuesday and closed a contract with Manager Peter L. Myers for four nights of the big acts on the vaudeville stage each week starting Thursday, May 21. This means that Janesville will have some of the same class of vaudeville that is played at the big houses in Minneapolis and the middle west. Janesville was selected as a break in the long jump from Kansas City to Minneapolis, and the theatre goers here can thank Manager Myers for making the arrangement. The Western Vaudeville Managers' Association controls the majority of the big show houses in the country and book solid for five-to-two weeks.

HEARING ON TO PREVENT COTTON FUTURES TRADING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, April 22.—The House Agricultural Committee today began hearings on the bill to standardize cotton gradings and to prevent trading in cotton futures.

The bill is designed to prevent trading in futures to cotton, and the committee will then consider grain future trading. A bill is now pending before the Senate committee to the same end.

The question of prohibiting trading in futures has been a particularly live one ever since the democrats obtained control of Congress. The subject affects practically every northern member. Their claim is that prices in the big cotton markets are largely fictitious and that the farmer gets "bunked" by prices that do not anywhere near represent the actual condition of the real cotton sales market.

LAST BUFFALO HUNT IS PLANNED FOR "MOVIES"

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Pierre, S. D., April 22.—Arrangements are being made here today for staging the last great Buffalo hunt of the West and in order that posterity may not forget how the original American chased his game, moving pictures will be taken of the hunt. John E. Sloat, of Gettysburg, S. D., who has an option on the famous Scotty Phillips herd of 467 buffalo, is negotiating with a moving picture company to turn over part of the herd and with the aid of 200 Sioux Indians stage a great buffalo hunt, authentic in every detail. It is probable that the event will be produced on the ranges west of here.

"SEPTEMBER MORN" WITH DAVE LEWIS

The new musical farce play with the airy topical title "September Morn" offers a cute, lively story that fairly convulses the audience as every bit of crisp, witty dialogue and sparkling banter is presented—and one finds his attention riveted by the whistling the jingly tunes after the catchy music is reeled off by the harmonious voices of the augmented cast and feature songs of the principals. The story is swift, with a hurrah as Rodolph Plastic, a would-be artist, who claims to have painted the celebrated Chapa's picture called "September Morn," (but in reality a caricature of the artist and his work) continues to get himself in tight places. Dave Lewis, the comedian, of real, entertaining comedies, had the leading role of Rodolph and his antics go with a flourish, and according to the original model of the popular picture and she instructs her publicity promoter to boost her as the real "September Morn," who was not a flake or whether it was. The dodging of Rodolph and the actress, both knowing they are imposters, creates an end of joyful line and situation. The play is a good one, and a big hit in the affairs of the lady thespian.

Sport Snap Shots

It's a cold and foggy day when Tinker Elbets, the Brooklyn owner of the Elbets, comes forth to offer us a character. His latest one is with regard to Tinker and the possibilities in his playing with the Superbas. Elbets says that he has decided to do nothing further in his efforts to get Tinker, as he feels that the fans couldn't want Tinker anyway. The whole Tinker has shown in the whole affair has so displeased Brooklyn fans, says Charley, that they couldn't want him to play for them under any circumstances. Along with this provokes the most resonant of guffaws.

Ban Johnson thinks that Francis Chance and his Yanks are going to make a pretty tussle for the American league rag. Ban says that he recently had a letter from Chance wherein the latter dwelt at some length of what all he and his crew were going to do to win the season's beginning and that he—Ban—has such a respect for Chance's opinion on such matters that he is quite willing to believe him. An occasional rumor has emanated as they say from the general direction of Ban on telling of the increased excellence of Chance's team and it is being thought by a great many that there might be something in it. Many an American league fan hopes to see two of the fiercest competitors toward the close of the season see the Yanks well up in the race and even astride the top of the heap.

THE APOLLO

Beginning Thursday there comes to the Apollo an attraction of more than usual magnitude. An attraction that is usually found upon the larger-stage is now appearing on the vaudeville stage. Gus & Sun's Minstrels with Charley Gano as premier comedian have been meeting with success everywhere. Those who have seen and heard Charley Gano will realize that regardless of the rest of the show they will get their money's worth of fun in him.

Tonight closes a very good bill which has been running since Monday. The musical comedy is more than making good with the Apollo audiences. They say they beat anything that has been shown here.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ENOUGH.

DO YOU know when you have had enough? We usually hear that question applied to one particular form of excess, but I mean to give it a broader gauge,—do you know when you have had enough of anything?

Enough is a small word but it is a big fact. There are few things in this world so bad as to be intrinsically harmful. The harm usually lies in the people who do not know when they have had enough.

On the other hand there are few things in the world so good that they cannot be made harmful by people who do not understand the meaning of that big, little word, enough.

Eating is a necessary and pleasant process, but over-eating kills both body and mind. Exercise strengthens the muscles but over-exercise tears them down.

A reasonable amount of study sharpens the mind. Over-studying dulls it.

The ancient Greeks, perhaps the wisest people who ever lived, had two great mottoes. One was "Know Thyself," the other "Nothing in excess." It would be hard to tell which of these two is the greater.

The inability to realize when one has had enough shows itself in a thousand little ways.

I have a friend who is unusually intelligent, of excellent presence and very persevering. He makes a pleasant impression upon everyone he meets. He ought to be a great success in a business way but he isn't.

And the reason is, that although he makes a pleasant impression he doesn't leave one. He meets a man, talks to him awhile, and wins him with the power of his personality. Then he talks to him a while longer and loses him by his long windiness and his inability to know when he has had enough.

Writers seldom know when they have enough. It is one of the sure signs of an unskillful writer that he isn't content with one adjective but continually uses two or three. Any amateur can pile word on word and phrase on phrase, and description on description. It takes the skilled man to know when to stop.

A great many people do not know when they have enough furniture in a room. Out of a dozen rooms nearly a half a dozen have too much in them. For one room that is spoiled by having too little in it, you will probably find a hundred spoiled by people who do not know when they have had enough.

Learn to know when you have had enough, be it of phrases, food, furniture or anything else in the world. For, as a friend of mine frequently says, "Enough is enough."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two chums of thirteen years and we would like to know a few things.

(1) Is it all right to start a note to a boy with "Dear" when you do not know him very well?

(2) Is it proper for boys to take girls to the ice cream parlor in the evening, if our parents know we're going?

CHUMS: (1) It is quite correct to begin a note "Dear John." Business men in their letters address each other as "Dear Mr. Smith," though they may never have met each other at all.

(2) If your parents know where you are going and with whom, and if you come home early, there is no harm in this.

please send your recipe for beads made of salt? BLUE EYES. Salt Beads—One cup fine table salt. Heat very hot. Dissolve one-half cup cornstarch in one-half cup water. Put with the cornstarch and coloring matter you wish to use. Remove salt from the fire and while very hot add it to cornstarch mixture. Work into a smooth dough, then wrap it in damp cloth and for the beads, break off little pieces to mold between the hands. Remember that they shrink in drying. String them on a fine wire and dry several days. Then polish by rubbing with a cloth that has been dipped in sweet oil.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. Would you care to tell me why "every day" doesn't bloom? When the buds are ready to open they wither and fall off. It has been doing this way for about six months. I reported the plant, but it does not better.

Thanking you for your kindness. GLADYS.

Try pinching off the buds as they appear and all the new sprouts. Sprinkle the plant with tobacco water for any insects that may be on it and stir a little powdered charcoal into the soil about the roots.

Immune From Certain Diseases. It is believed that previous to civilization baldness was unknown among American Indians. The uncivilized Indian, apparently is yet free from pellagra and almost immune from cancer.

MME. FREMSTAD SAYS SHE IS PEACEABLE

Mme. Fremstad.

A hint of the quarrels of the artists of the Metropolitan Opera House is given by Mme. Olive Fremstad, the famous soprano, in discussing the report that this will be her last season in New York.

"I know it has been said at the Metropolitan that I am quarrelsome and that I have only a few roles in my repertoire," she says. "Do not believe those tales. They are untrue."

Women Worth While

SEÑORITA ENRIQUETA MORALES.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

One of the most interesting personalities in the diplomatic corps at Washington is Senorita Enriqueta Morales, the daughter of the minister from Panama. On account of the illness of her mother, the mantle of hostess in her father's house has fallen on the shoulders of Miss Morales during her residence at the capital, and she has upheld the dignity of the position in a most capable way.

Miss Morales was educated at the Ursuline convent in Belgium, at Malines, one of the largest educational institutions in the world. English, French and Spanish are equally familiar to her. Her course of studies included, besides languages, things of a much more practical sort. She took thorough courses in trained nursing, kindergarten work and scientific dressmaking, as well as cooking. Her training shows up in the designs drawn by herself which fully equal those of the fashion magazines, while as a trained nurse and a kindergartener she received the diploma of graduation. Her lace work is of the beautiful delicate pattern for which the people of Belgium are famous.

Her account of the picturesque life in Belgium, of the costume the old people still wear, of the canals and windmills is interesting. A very happy day in her busy life was one of the convent, this girl from the sunny south, and it was a year or so since she bade it farewell to return to her native land. But she was not destined to remain long at home, for within a few months her father, who was the minister of public instruction in Panama, was appointed to represent his country in the United States.

Senorita Morales has the unique distinction of being the only suffragist from Panama and will carry the banner of her land in the suffrage parade which will take place in Washington on May 30th. This flag is one of the most beautiful owned by any nation and her appearance marks quite a step in the advancement of women.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To remove shine from serge. Sponge the suit or dress with acetone, and press in the usual manner. To odor of vinegar will remain, all the shine caused by water will disappear and the garment will look like new. The vinegar leaves no stain.

Sausage, when frying, has little fat, this shows it contains beef, and should not cost the same as that made only of pork.

One pint of chopped meat equals one pound of ground meat.

To freshen chiffon pass a fairly hot iron over the wrong side. This will remove all the wrinkles, and if the chiffon is tucked, it will give the tucks the raised appearance they had when new.

THE TABLE.

Oyster Soup, Amsterdam Style.—One quart of oysters, water, three tablespoons of butter, three and one-half tablespoons of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, paprika, celery salt, one cup of cream. Chop, pick over, chop and parboil the oysters; drain and add to the liquor enough water to make one quart of liquid. Brown the butter, add the flour and pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, the oyster liquor. Let it simmer one-half hour. Season with salt, paprika and celery salt, and just before serving add the cream.

Sautéed Cod with Oyster Stuffing.—Clean a four-pound cod, sprinkle with salt and pepper, brush over with lemon juice, stuff, and stew. Wash, drain, and bake fifteen minutes in moderate oven. Serve with oyster sauce.

Oyster Stuffing.—One cup of cracked crumbs, one-fourth cup of melted butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one and one-half tablespoons of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, one cup of oysters. Add the seasonings and butter to the crumbs. Clean the oysters and remove the tough muscles; add the soft parts to the mixture, with two tablespoons of oyster liquor to moisten.

Scalloped Brussels Sprouts.—Pick over, remove the outer leaves, and soak in cold water one quart of sprouts. Cook in boiling salted water, until soft, then drain. Wash celery and cut in pieces; there should be one and one-half cups of celery. Add one-half cup of butter, add the celery, cook two minutes, add three tablespoons of flour, and pour on gradually one and one-half cups of scalded milk, add the sprouts and turn the mixture into a baking-dish. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Hot Slaw.—Select a small, heavy cabbage, take off the outer leaves and cut in half; with a sharp knife slice very thinly. Heat in a dressing made of the yolks of two eggs slightly beaten, one-fourth cup of cold water, one tablespoonful of oil, one-fourth cup of hot vinegar, and one-half teaspoonful of salt, stirred over hot water until thickened.

Pea Timbales.—Drain and rinse one can of peas and rub through a sieve. To one cup of pea pulp add two beaten eggs, two tablespoons of melted butter, two-thirds teaspoonful of melted butter, two-thirds teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, few grains of cayenne, and a few drops of onion juice. Turn into a buttered mold, set in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper, and bake until firm. Serve with one cup of white sauce to which is added one-third cup of canned peas drained and rinsed.

Mushroom Toast.—Peel, stem and cut in pieces, wash in cold water and dry between folds of a soft towel. Rub a generous piece of butter, vegetable oil or drippings in a frying pan, then put in the mushrooms and a little salt and pepper (more salt and pepper may be added if necessary afterward). Fry them slowly till tender, then cover well with milk and let simmer. While you are frying the mushrooms, make some toast (amount according to how many mushrooms you have), then cut the toast in small pieces and put in with the mushrooms. The flavor of the mushrooms goes into the pieces of toast and you cannot tell one from the other. Let all cook very slowly till the milk is boiled down, then serve on a piece of toast.

Celery Mold.—Simmer until tender a cupful of diced celery, a cup of water, a slice of onion. Add a tablespoonful of gelatin, softened in cold water, a teaspoonful of salt and some cayenne pepper. Rub through a sieve. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with mayonnaise.

Japanese Eggs.—Spread a layer of hot boiled rice on a buttered platter, then season well with melted butter, lemon juice and newly minced parsley. Poach half a dozen eggs so that they are perfectly shaped, arrange on the rice and sprinkle with parsley.

MOTHERS' CONGRESS ON CHILD WELFARE OPENS CONVENTION

National Congress of Mothers' and Teachers' Association Convened at Washington Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, April 22.—The perfect child—mentally, morally, physically and spiritually—is the paramount object of the third International Congress of Mothers and Teachers of the Child, which convened in Washington today and will continue for a week, through April 27. The meeting is under the direction and supervision of the National Congress of Mothers and the Parent Teachers' Associations.

From every state in America and from most of the civilized countries of the world thousands of mothers have come to attend this great meeting, the most important human welfare gathering since the memorial Congress on Hygiene and Demography held two years ago. On the program are more than forty speakers from all parts of the world, women and men of international reputations and recognized authorities of childhood from the United States, Europe, South America, China and Japan.

For six days these experts will discuss every phase of the upbringing, training and education of the child and the congress is bound to be of inestimable benefit to the mothers all over the world.

Preliminary conferences and business meetings, to effect an organization were held yesterday, under the direction of Mrs. Frederic Schott of Philadelphia, President of the National Congress of Mothers. Today there were business meetings.

The opening addresses of the congress will be given tonight at the Raleigh Hotel. Mrs. Schott will deliver the president's address and official welcome will be extended to the foreign representatives, and the delegations appointed by the governors of the various states.

Following the opening meeting the program for the rest of the congress is divided into four main sections: morning and Friday the meetings will be given over to papers and open discussions, called round tables, or symposiums, devoted to the relations of the child to the home. The relations of the child to the school will be the topic for Saturday's session.

On Sunday, "The Church and Child Welfare" will be the subject and on Monday the discussion will turn to do, perhaps with the most important subdivision of the congress, the child's relation to the state.

In these discussions, the most renowned child-training experts of the world will be the spokesmen, and the phase of the development of the youngster will be dealt with. Among those who have arrived here to deliver special papers and addresses and to lead in the round table discussions are:

Mrs. S. H. Whitten, of Holyoke, Mass.; Dr. Maximilian R. Grossman, of Plainfield, N. J.; Mrs. Robert H. Tate, of Portland, Oregon; Bernard J. Newman, of Philadelphia; Warren Booker, of Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Parker, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. Zerita D. Furness, representative from Bulgaria; Miss Pingas Hu, representing China; Mrs. R. P. Alexander, from Tokyo, Japan.

Others are Mrs. Edwin R. Weeks, of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Walter Leroy Smith, of Malden, Mass.; Mrs. David O. Meigs, of Essex, Mass.; Mrs. C. C. Noble, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Fred Dick, of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Henry Osgood Holland, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Augustus Henry Reeve, of Morristown, N. J.; Aristone Felts, of Portland, Oregon; Prof. E. A. Kirkpatrick, of Fitchburg, Mass.; Judge Ben B. Lindsay, of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Warwick A. Deyning, of Denver, Colo.

The program is divided into twelve sessions, to be held mornings, afternoons and nights, beginning today and ending next Monday.

A feature of the congress will be a reception to the delegates at the White House on Thursday afternoon, at which Mrs. Wilson will be the hostess. Dinners, luncheons and sight-seeing tours of the Capital also have been arranged.

A Beatitude. Blessed are the poor in pocket, for they shall be practised upon by physicians, sliced by surgeons, patronized by plutocratic philanthropists, purchased by politicians, researched by reformers, led about by lawyers, awed by authorities, exhorted by ecclesiastics, meddled with by ministers, explained by economists, and castigated by courts.—Life.

Jelly Roll Recipe. Only Two Eggs Required.

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks.

One cup sifted flour; scant half teaspoonful salt; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; grated rind of 1 lemon; 1 egg; beaten light; 1 cup sugar; 1/2 cup hot milk; glass of jelly; powdered sugar.

Beat the sugar into the eggs; add the lemon rind, then the flour, sifted three times with the salt and baking powder; and, lastly, the milk. Bake in a buttered dripping pan; turn out on a damp cloth, trim off the crisp edges; spread with jelly and turn over and over into a roll while still warm. Dredge the top with powdered sugar.

Hot milk used in the jelly roll enables it to be rolled without danger of cracking. Have the milk scalding hot, also be careful to have the eggs and sugar beaten together until very light and creamy. Bake in a moderate oven.

K C Jelly Roll is illustrated on page thirty-two of the new and handsomely illustrated 64-page K C Cook's Book, which may be secured free by sending the certificate packed in every 5-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAGGERS MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

TELLS WHY SOME THINGS COME HIGH

Mrs. Julian Heath.

"Many women always pay the highest price without any idea of values," says Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the Housewives' League of New York city. "The other day I went into a store and saw two cases of eggs—one marked 28 cents and the other 35 cents."

"What the difference?" I asked the grocer.

"There is no difference," he replied. "But some women will always pay the highest price, and I must make what I can."

CLASS DECIDES NOT TO PRESENT A PLAY

BIG MUSICAL PROGRAM WILL TAKE PLACE OF ANNUAL PLAY FOR FIRST TIME.

THREE DAYS' PROGRAM

Majestic Pageant Will Be Held As In Past Years—Graduation Night Comes On the 11th of June.

The abolition of the annual class play, which has been the main attraction at the graduation exercises held under the auspices of the senior graduates at the Janesville high school, was brought about yesterday following the action taken by the school board a few months past.

The play will be substituted by a feature musical program, to be given by members of the senior class, who are musicians, and also by the orchestra and glee clubs at the school. The class believe they can outline a program, which will meet with the entire satisfaction of those who attend. The play will be missed especially this year, because it is the first time in a great many years, that graduate exercises will be given without one.

There are several reasons for all probabilities come on the first night of the three day program, or June the 9th. On the 10th, in the afternoon, the plan is to present the grand pageant in the same natural amphitheatre, the rear of the Court House park, where the previous May fete was held. The May Pole dance will be on the program with the May Queen procession, and foreign dances.

Thursday night, the eleventh, graduation night will come, when graduating seniors will receive their diplomas. Orations, the class prophecy, poem, will, token, and history. If these are decided on, will come on this night.

There will be more seniors taking part in the various exercises this year than in the past. Taking out the ones who would have made up the play cast, and placing them in other events, the program will be considerably lengthened, especially on the last night. More girls will be in the program, and the program will be a great help in making this season's May Day Festival a grand success.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, April 22.—The appearance of the Farmers and Merchants bank is being improved by the erection of a new building, as is also Osgood Bros. store.

Miss Ruth Hurley who has been ill at the hospital at Delavan, returned to the home of her sister, Mrs. E. E. Tamm.

Cap Campbell of Chicago is in the village for a few days, looking after his tobacco interests, and also visiting with friends.

M. J. Sampson was among those who transacted business in Janesville on Tuesday.

Messrs. Cullen, Nelson and a third party from Janesville, were in the village for a few hours on Tuesday morning acting as arbitrators in a dispute between M. J. Sampson and B. H. Burtess regarding the value of some work that the former had performed. The decision seemed rather to favor the contention of Mr. Sampson.

Rev. W. C. Sainsbury and family left on Tuesday afternoon for a two or three weeks visit with friends in Kansas. There will be no preaching in service at the M. E. church on Sunday by reason of his absence, but on the following Sunday the pulpit will be filled by Rev. Perry Miller, district superintendent, at which time the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed.

HOW RESINOL CLEARS AWAY UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, or complicated "beauty treatments." See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals skin burnings. Resinol Ointment and Soap sold by all druggists. For free trial size, write Dept. K.K. Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At The Real Cause—Take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way, when the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with indigestion food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

CITY SCHOOLS WILL OBSERVE ARBOR DAY

Graded Schools Will Hold Short Programs in Morning, And Then Be Dismissed and Put to Work.

The graded schools of this city will observe Arbor Day on May the first. In the morning, the students will assemble in their respective school rooms, where short Arbor Day programs will be given. Following, they will be dismissed to do everything up the problem of cleaning up the city.

"Swat the fly," and the picking up of old tin cans, rubbish, and cleaning up their own and other yards, is the principal problem confronting them. They have stated that they will make a decided effort to aid in the cleanup, and it should not be surprising to see the youngsters doing a good share of the work in and about the city on May first. The high school will close at noon.

SPANISH WAR VETS PREPARE TO ENLIST IF SERVICE IS NEEDED

Decide, However, Not to Go as an Organized Body, But Will Enlist as Individuals.

Members of the Harry L. Gifford Camp 23 of the United Spanish War Veterans are ready to do everything in their power to aid the government in the present Mexican crisis. This is the decision reached last evening at a special meeting held for this purpose which was attended by the most every member of the camp.

It was, however, decided not to seek to organize a company in Janesville, but that the individual members of the camp would enlist in various military companies throughout the state or in the regulars if an urgent call for recruits is issued. The men also renewed their oath of allegiance to the United States government and listened to inspiring and patriotic speeches by the various officers of the camp.

Another important matter was brought up for consideration and resolutions were passed inviting the members of William H. Sargent Post of the Grand Army of the Republic to become honorary members of the United Spanish War Veterans Association.

This movement is nation-wide today and practically every city of importance where both organizations are installed just such a unity is taking place.

The Spanish War Veterans' committee of this movement will be present at the next regular meeting of the G. A. R., at which time the invitation for becoming honorary members in their order will be extended.

On The Spur of The Moment

The Easter Bonnet.
Where lilacs hid the text
And smiles wreathed the altar,
And every head was gravely bent
Over sacred psalm and psalter,
And all the font was pink and white,
With roses strewn upon it,
He saw a little maid in gray,
Who wore an Easter bonnet.

He walked behind her from the church
And viewed her girlish graces,
And breathed the vague, delicious scent
Of dainty bows and laces.
A prayer book was in her hand—
The most every member of the camp.
It was, however, decided not to seek to organize a company in Janesville, but that the individual members of the camp would enlist in various military companies throughout the state or in the regulars if an urgent call for recruits is issued. The men also renewed their oath of allegiance to the United States government and listened to inspiring and patriotic speeches by the various officers of the camp.

Here eyes were full of April tears,
Her sunny curls about her brow
Were made for man's beguiling;
Her face was like a dewy rose,
He paused to gaze upon it,
And thought that he had lost his heart,
As she had lost her bonnet.

But now a spray of orange flowers
He bathed about the Latin,
The little maid is all in white—
A dream of lace and satin—
And, as he takes her slender hand,
And slips the ring upon it,
He murmurs softly in her ear—
A blessing on the bonnet!

OLD PEOPLE GAIN
Strength by Taking Vinol. Here is Proof.

So many cases like this are constantly coming to our attention that we publish it for the benefit of others:—Mr. John Widmayer of Jackson, Mich., says: "I am nearly 70 years of age, and was in a feeble condition but Vinol has done wonders for me. It is the best medicine to create strength I have ever seen and I have taken a good many of them: Last spring I was run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon regained my strength. Vinol is certainly an invigorating tonic for old people."

It is the medicinal curative elements of the cod livers without oil added by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic which are contained in Vinol that makes it so efficient in such cases.

If you have an aged father, mother or anyone in your family who needs a strength-creating tonic, try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to benefit. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis. P. S. For itching, burning skin try our Saxe Salve. We guarantee it.

Presently, his brows frowning heavily, he spread out the crumpled paper and reread it with bitter slowness, weighing each phrase. "Something which she had learned since she last saw him, which lay between them. She had not known it, then, last night, when they had kissed beside the sundial! She had loved him then! What could there be that thrust them irrevocably apart?"

Without stopping to think of the darkness or that the friendly doors of the edifice would be swiftly down the drive to the road, along which he plunged breathlessly. The blue star-spangled sky was now streaked with clouds like faded orchids, and the shadows on the uneven ground under his hurried feet made him giddy. "Through the din and burly-burly of his thoughts he was conscious of dimly-moving shapes across fences, the sweet breath of cows, and a negro pedestrian who greeted him in passing. He was stricken suddenly with the thought that Shirley was suffering, too. It seemed incredible that he should now be raging along a country road at nightfall to find something that so horribly hurt them both.

It was almost dark—save for the starlight—when he saw the shadow of the square ivy-grown spire rearing stark from its huddle of foliage against the blurred background. He pushed open the gate and went slowly up the worn path toward the great iron-bound and hooded door. Under the larches on either hand the outlines of the graves loomed pallidly, and from the bell tower came the faint inquiring cry of a small owl. Valiant stood looking about him. What could he learn here? He read no answer to the riddle. A little to one side of the path something showed snow-like on the ground, and he went toward it. Nearer, he saw that it was a mass of flowers, staring up whitely from the semi-obscurity from within an iron railing. He bent over, suddenly noting the scent: it was cape jessamine.

With the curious sensation of almost prescience plucking at him, he took a box of vestas from his pocket and struck one. It flared up illuminating a flat granite slab in which was cut a name and inscription:

EDWARD SASSOON.
"Forgive us our trespasses."
The silence seemed to crash to earth like a great looking-glass and shiver into a million pieces. The wax dropped from his fingers and in the supervening darkness a numb fright gripped him by the throat. Shirley had laid these there, on the grave of the man his father had killed—the cape jessamine she had wanted that day, for her mother! He understood.

It came to him at last that there was a chill mist groping among the trees and that he was very cold. He went back along the Red Road stumbingly. Was this to be the end of the dream, which he had fancied would last forever? Could it be that she was not for him? Was it no hoary tale that the sins of the fathers were visited upon the third and fourth generation?

When he re-entered the library the candle was guttering in the burned wings of a night-moth. The place looked all at once gaunt and desolate and despoiled. What could Virginia, what could Damory Court, be to him without her? The wrinkled note lay on the desk and he bent suddenly with a sharp catching breath and kissed it. There welled over him a wave of rebellious longing. The candle spread to a hazy yellow blur. The walls fell away. He stood under the moonlight, with his arms about her, his lips on hers and his heart beating to the sound of the violins behind them.

He laughed—a harsh wild laugh that rang through the gloomy room. Then he threw himself on the couch and buried his face in his hands. He was still lying there when the misty rain-wet dawn came through the shutters.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Coming of Grief King.
It was Sunday afternoon, and under the hemlocks, Rickey Snyder had gathered her minnie—a dozen children from the nearby houses with the usual sprinkling of little blacks from the kitchens. There were parents, of course, to whom this mingling of color and degree was a matter of conventional prohibition, but since the advent of Rickey, in whose soul lay a Napoleonic instinct of leadership, this was more honored in the breach than in the observance.

"My! Ain't it scrumptious here now!" said Cozy Cabell, hanging yellow lady-slippers over her ears. "I wish we could play here always."

"Mr. Valiant will let us," said Rickey. "I asked him."

"Oh, he will," responded Cozy gloomily, "but he'll probably go and marry somebody who'll be mean about it."

"Everybody doesn't get married," said one of the Byloe twins, with masculine assurance. "Maybe he won't."

"Much a boy knows about it!" retorted Cozy scornfully. "Women have to, and some one of them will make him. (Greenview Female Seminary Simms, if you slap that little nigger again, I'll slap you!)"

Greene rolled over on the grass and tittered. "Miss Mattie Sue didn't," she said. "Ah, heah huh say de yuddah day et wuz er moughty good feelin' ter go ter bald Mistis en git up Mars tahl!"

"Well," said Cozy, tossing her head till the flower earrings danced. "I'm going to get married if the man hasn't got anything but a character and a red mustache. Married women don't have to prove they could have got a husband if they had wanted to."

"Let's play something," proposed Rosebud Meredith, on whom the discussion paled. "Let's play King, King Katiko."

"It's Sunday!"—this from her smaller and more righteous sister. "We're forbidden to play anything but Bible games on Sunday, and if Rosebud does, I'll tell."

"Jay-bird tattle-tale!" sang Rosebud derisively. "Don't care if you do!"

"Well," decreed Rickey. "We'll play Sunday school then. It would take a saint to object to that. I'm superintendent and this stump's my desk. All you children sit down under that tree."

They ranged themselves in two rows, the white children in clean Sabbath pinafores and go-to-meeting kulcherbockers, in front and the colored ones, in gingham and cotton-prints, in the rear—the habitual expression of a differing social station. "Oh!" shrieked Miss Cabell, "and I'll be Mrs. Merryweather Mason and teach the infants' class."

"There isn't any infant class," said Rickey. "How could there be when there aren't any infants? The lesson is over and I've just rung the bell for silence. Children, this is Missionary Sunday, and I'm glad to see so many happy faces here today. Cozy," she said, relenting, "you can be the organist if you want to."

"I won't," said Cozy sullenly. "If I can't be table-cloth I won't be dish-rag."

"All right, you needn't," retorted Rickey, freely. "Sit up, Greene. People don't lie on their backs in Sunday-school."

Greene yawned dully, and righted herself with injured slowness. "Ah, diffuses ter 'cep' yo' insult, Rickey Snyder," she said. "Ah'd ruther lose mah 'ligion dan mah laz'ness. En Ah 'splices yo' spissable dissipation!"

unmoved, "and sing 'Kingdom Coming.' And she struck up lustily, beating time on the stump with a stick; and the rows of children joined in with unison, the colored contingent coming out strong on the chorus:

De yert shall be full ob de wondrousful story
As walaah dat coyah de seal

The clear voices in the quiet air startled the fluttering birds and sent a squirrel to the tip-top of an oak, from which he looked down, flitting his bush. They roused a man, too, who had lain in a sodden sleep under a bush at a little distance. He was ragged and soiled and his heavy brutal face, covered with a dark stubble of some days' growth, had an ugly scar slanting back from cheek to hair. Without getting up, he rolled over to command a better view, and set his eyes, blinking from their slumber, on the children.

"We will now take up the collection," said Rickey. ("You can do it, June. Use a flat piece of bark.") Remember that what we give today is for the poor heathen in—in Alabama."

The bark-slab made its rounds, receiving leaves, acorns, and an occasional pin. Midway, however, there arose a shrill shriek from the bearer and the collection was scattered broadcast. "Rosebud Meredith," said Rickey, witheringly, "it would serve you right for putting that toad in the plate if your hand would get all over warts! I'm sure I hope it will."

She rescued the fallen piece of bark and announced: "The collection this afternoon has amounted to a hundred dollars and seven cents. And now, children, we will skip the catechism and I will tell you a story."

Her auditors hunched themselves nearer, a double row of attentive white and black faces, as Rickey with a preliminary bass cough, began in a drawing tone whose mimicry called forth giggles of ecstasy.

There were once two little sisters, who went to Sunday-school and loved their teacher ve-ery much. They were always good and attentive—not like that little nigger over there! The one with his thumb in his mouth! One was little Mary and the other was little Susy. They had a mighty rich uncle who lived in Richmond, and once he came to see them and gave them each a dollar. And they were ve-ery glad. It wasn't a mean old paper dollar, all dirt and creases; nor a battered whitey silver dollar; but it was a bright round gold dollar, right out of the mint. Little Mary and little Susy could hardly sleep that night for thinking of what they could buy with those gold dollars.

Early next morning they went down-town, hand in hand, to the store, and little Susy bought a bag of goober-peas, and sticks and sticks of striped candy, and a lumber jack, and a gold ring, and a wax doll with a silk dress on that could open and shut its eyes—

"Huh!" said the captious Cozy. "You can't buy a wax doll for a dollar. My littlest, littlest one cost three, and she didn't have a stitch to her back!"

"Shut up!" said Rickey, briefly. "Dolls were cheaper then." She looked at the row of little negroes, goggle-eyed at the vision of such largesse. "What do you think little Mary did with her gold dollar? She loved dolls and candy, too, but she had heard about the poor-oor heathen. There was a tear in her eye, but she took the dollar home, and next day when she went to Sunday-school, she dropped it in the missionary-box."

"Little children, what do you reckon became of that dollar? It bought a big satchelful of tracts for a missionary. He had been a poor man with six children and a wife with a bone-felon on her right hand—not a child old enough to wash dishes and all of them young enough to fall in the fire—so he had to go and be a missionary. He was going to Alabama—to a cannibal island, and he took the tracts and sailed away in a ship that landed him on the shore. And when the heathen cannibals saw him they were ve-ery glad, for there hadn't been any shipwrecked sailors for a long time, and they were ve-ery hungry. So they tied up the missionary and gathered a lot of wood to make a fire and cook him."

"But it had rained and rained and rained for so long that the wood was all wet, and it wouldn't burn, and they all cried because they were so hungry. And then they happened to find the satchelful of tracts, and the tracts were ve-ery dry. They took them and stuck them under the wet wood, and the tracts burned and the wood caught fire and they cooked the missionary and ate him."

"Now, little children, which do you think did the most good with her dollar—little Susy or little Mary?"

The front row sniggered, and a sigh came from the colored ranks. "Dem ar' can'bale," gasped a dusky infant breathlessly. "—dey done eat up all dat candy and dem goober-peas, too?"

The inquiry was drowned in a shriek from several children in unison. They scrambled to their feet, casting fearful glances over their shoulders. The man who had been lying behind the bush had risen and was coming toward them at a slouching amble, one foot dragging slightly. His appearance, indeed, was enough to cause panic. With his savage face, set now in a grin, and his tramp-like costume, he looked fierce and animal-like. White and black, the children fled like startled rabbits, older ones dragging younger, without a backward look—all save Rickey, who stood quite still, her widening eyes fixed on him in a kind of blanched fascinated terror.

He came close to her, never taking his eyes from hers, then put his heavy grimy hand under her chin and turned her twitching face upward, chuckling. "Ain't afraid, d—n me!" he said with admiration. "Wouldn't skeedaddle with th' fine folks' white-livered young uns! Know who I am, don't ye?"

"Grief King," Rickey's lips rather formed than spoke the name.

"Right. An' I know you, too. Got jes' th' same look ez when ye wuzn't no higher'n my knee. So ye ain't at th' Dome no mo', eh? Purkle an' fine linnin' an' a eddication. Ho-ho! Goin' ter make ye another ladyless like the sweet ducky-dovey that rescued ye from th' lovin' embrace o' yer fond step-parant, eh?"

Dinner Stories

"Are you familiar with the Mexican situation?"

"Only up to 8 o'clock this morning."

Holding a glass of clear honey in his right hand, father observed impressively: "It cost the little boys many a weary trip to fill this with sweetness from the flowers." Little Laura, who had been listening closely, exclaimed with great earnestness: "Wouldn't it have been too bad if one of them dropped the glass?"

A pompous physician who was inclined to criticize others was watching a stone mason build a fence for a neighbor. He thought the mason used too much mortar. "Jim," he said, "the trowel covers up a good many mistakes, doesn't it?" "Yes, doctor," calmly replied the mason, "and so does the spade."

A physician who attended Pontreille once found him drinking coffee.

"My good sir," said this sage descendant of Galen, "I am astonished to see you swallowing the infusion of that pernicious berry—coffee is a slow poison." "I think," said Pontreille, "it must be slow; for I have drunk it with great perseverance for more than forty years."

Easy Money

"I sold seven dollars worth of eggs this spring, for setting," said a man to his neighbor the other morn' as they walked to work.

"No?"

"Fact!"

"Well, you can make your hens pay. How did you do it?"

"Ran an ad in our home paper stating we had eggs for hatching. The rest was easy. So many people are going in for hens that we were kept busy answering the phone and putting up the eggs."

"I never thought much of the want ad page, you show it up in a new light to me."

"To be candid we did not either, but we've changed our minds. Why we received answers from towns around here calling for eggs; towns as far as thirty miles away. Guess the want ad page is all its claimed to be, and a little bit more."

What has the want ad page done for you in the way of helping you to buy or sell? Do you realize its power?

GENERAL ADVANCE ON VERA CRUZ

Admiral Badger Arrives With Remainder of His Fleet and Active Preparations Begin For Driving Mexican Forces Out of the City. One Hundred and Fifty Mexicans Killed.

MEXICAN REPRESENTATIVE TO LEAVE WASHINGTON

Charge of Affairs O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City Reported To Have Been Ordered To Leave Country. No Mexican General In Authority Is Located at Vera Cruz and the Efforts of Admiral Fletcher To Stop Fighting Unavailing.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, April 22.—The most startling event of the morning aside from the news of the advance of the American sailors and marines at Vera Cruz to capture the city was that Mexican Charge of Affairs El Gara had been instructed by Huerta to request his passports from Secretary of State Bryan. This is practical declaration of war by Huerta without waiting for the United States.

O'Shaughnessy To Leave.

Following this came an unconfirmed report that Huerta had instructed Charge of Affairs O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City to withdraw and that his passports had been offered him.

Advance Begun Early.

Washington, April 22.—The American forces commenced an advance to take the entire city of Vera Cruz at eight o'clock under guns of the war vessels according to word received from the American consul Canada received at the state department at ten o'clock this morning.

Admiral Badger Arrives.

Washington, April 22.—Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the Atlantic fleet, officially reported to the navy department today the arrival at Vera Cruz of his flag ship, the Arkansas, along with the battleships Vermont, New Jersey and the South Carolina. The scout cruisers, Chester and San Francisco, have arrived in Vera Cruz from Tampico.

WILSON SORRY AT FIGHTING.

Washington, April 22.—"I am sorry, terribly sorry!" were President Wilson's words when the news of the loss of life in taking Vera Cruz was reported to him. Today the President was sad and disheartened as he walked slowly to his office through the White House. His head was bowed and his face showed great feeling.

Many Mexicans Killed.

Vera Cruz, April 22.—Consul Canada estimates the number of Mexicans killed and wounded in the fighting with the American marines and blue jackets yesterday as 150 but reports are still very vague. It is believed, however, that the Mexican casualties were greater than those of the Americans who lost four killed and twenty wounded.

This morning bodies of Mexicans are lying about the central part of the city uncared for. Serious fighting on the part of the Mexicans early today appeared to be concluded.

Fired From Roofs.

During the night there was an occasional shot from the roofs of houses, sometimes even with the American lines, and it was unsafe to traverse the streets.

Late last night Rear Admiral Fletcher, through Consul W. W. Canada, sent a second message to a Mexican to endeavor to locate some one in command to tell him conditions and suggest that in the name of humanity he call off his men.

Ready to Fire.

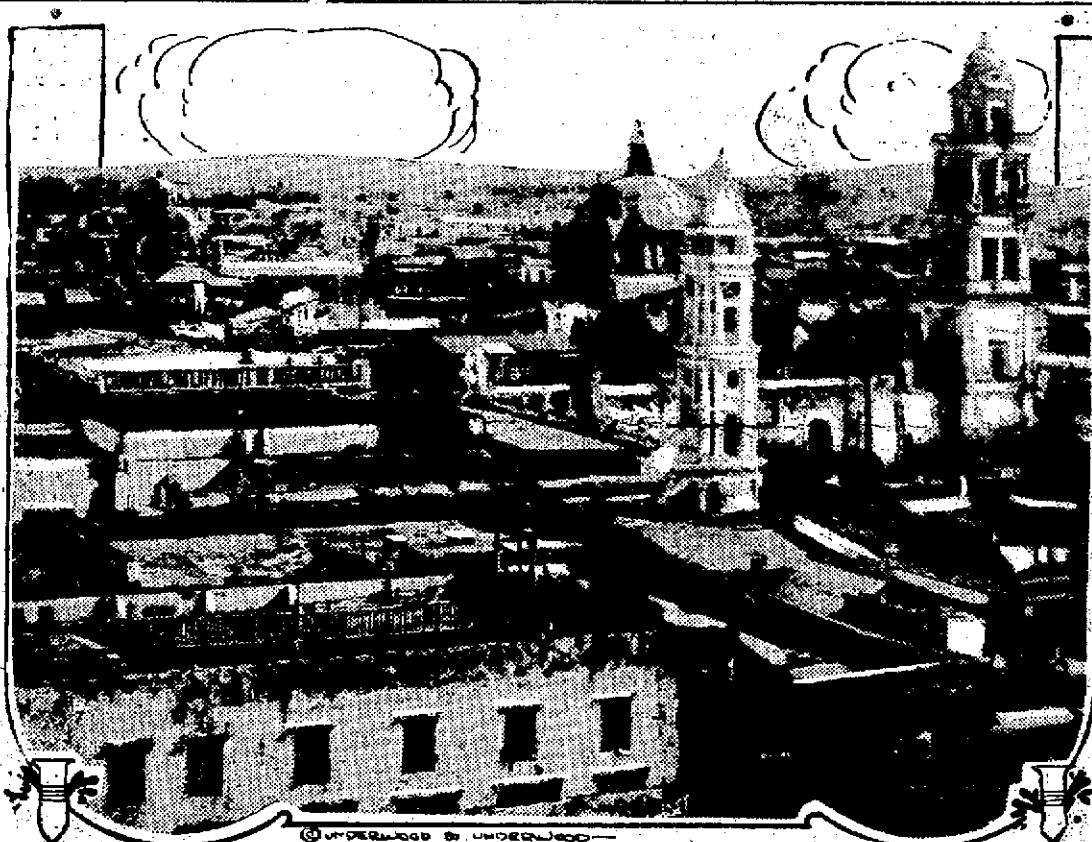

The Rear Admiral is considering the throwing of shells but is reluctant to action merely to clear the houses of the determined few. The Americans have not yet occupied the central part of the city and more fighting may begin before the town is in their undisputed possession.

The efforts of Rear Admiral Fletcher late last night to find some one who exercises command over the Mexicans and to suggest that he call off his men in the interest of humanity were unsuccessful.

Hid On Roofs.

The Admiral hesitated to open fire with shell on the city but the presence of rifle men hidden behind the copings of the flat roof buildings which furnished capital shelter for the defending sharpshooters made the use of artillery almost imperative to prevent the loss of life of more Americans.

Of the twenty-one blue jackets and marines wounded in yesterday's fighting four are seriously hurt according to a report from the surgeons today.

SENATE SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION MEETS APPROVAL OF HOUSE

AMENDED RESOLUTION PASSES
SENATE EARLY TODAY AND HOUSE AT ONCE
CONCURS.

AUTHORITY TO WILSON

Gives President Power to Use Armed Force to Secure Amends for Injuries.—Huerta's Name Is Not Mentioned.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, April 22.—Minority Leader Underwood announced today that he did not expect the house to act on any bill appropriating money for war purposes in Mexico at the present time.

"We have plenty of money now unless the president expects to march to Mexico City. As far as I know the president has no such intentions." Representative Flood, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee moved that the House concur in the senate justification resolution when the session resumed after recess. He urged that there be no conference.

Pass Substitute Resolution.

The senate substitute resolution on the Mexican situation which passed early today, 26 to 13, read as follows: "In view of the facts presented by the President of the United States, in his address delivered to the Congress in joint session on the 20th of April, 1914, in regard to certain affronts and indignities committed against the United States in Mexico, be it resolved:

"That the President be justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce his demand for an unequivocal amendment for the affronts and indignities committed against the United States. Be it further resolved that the United States disclaim any hostilities toward the Mexican people or any purpose to make war upon them."

House Gives Concurrences.
"The House concurred in the substitute resolution justifying the President in the use of armed forces in Mexico. There was no debate and the viva voce vote was almost unanimous. The following is the final vote for the resolution:

Democrats—Alhurst, Bankhead, Bryan, Chilton, Clarke, Ark., Fletcher, Gore, Hitchcock, Hollis, Martin, McIntire, Newlands, O'Gorman, Overman, Owen, Pittman, Pomeroy, Ransdell, Robinson, Saulsbury, Shafroth, Shepard, Fields, Shively, Simons, Smith, Ga., Smith, Maryland; Walsh West and Williams. Total, 45.

Republicans—Borah, Bradley, Brady, Burleigh, Catron, Clapp, Clark, Wyo., Colt, Crawford, Cummings, Fall, Goss, Jones, Kenyon, Smith, Mich., Sutherland, Townsend, Warren. Total, 26.

Progressive—Poindexter.

Against the Resolution—Not finished.

"BADGER A SECOND DEWEY"—DANIELS

Admiral Badger.

WHAT BLOCKADE WILL DO.

The principal Mexican ports which probably will be sealed up by the American blockade are the following:
East coast—Vera Cruz, Tampico, Tuxtepec, Alvarado, Campeche, Progreso, Puerto Mexico.
West coast—Acapulco, Guaymas, Mazatlan, Manzanillo, Altamira, Rosalia, San Blas, Topolobampo, Salina Cruz, Pochutla.
The effect of the blockade may be to put an end to Mexico's trade with foreign nations. This trade during the fiscal year 1909-10, just before the Madero revolt, amounted to $238,000,000. The value of the exports was $130,000,000 and of the imports $98,000,000.

OWEN SAYS LAW WILL NOT ALLOW CREAM FROM TUBERCULAR MILK SOLD

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.
Madison, Wis., April 22.—It is the law of the state that cream from milk taken from tubercular cows may not be sold in Wisconsin. Attorney General Owen says the board of control have left on a trip to visit prisons in the middle west, with especial attention to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas. They will return May 1. The board will meet May 5.

TO VISIT PRISONS IN MIDDLE WEST TO LEARN MORE OF HONOR SYSTEM

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.
Madison, Wis., April 22.—President Ralph E. Smith and Secretary Matt Tappin, the state board of control, will leave on a trip to visit prisons in the middle west, with especial attention to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kansas. They will return May 1. The board will meet May 5.

Wisconsin has recently adopted the honor system in the employment of convicts, and the board hopes to profit by knowledge gained at prisons where the system has been in operation. The secretarial work of the board in the absence of Secretary Tappin is being done by Miss Katharine Williams, recording secretary.

Dozen or More Places in City Where Latest Dispatches Are Displayed—Extra Editions Issued.

Within twenty minutes after the news was received at the Gazette office last evening telling of the first firing and bloodshed in Mexico, the six o'clock extra edition was on the street giving the all too meagre details to the Janesville public.

Later in the evening a somewhat fuller dispatch was received and was given wide publicity throughout the city. Bulletins were posted at the following places: Gazette bulletin board, George Thrig's Smoke Shop, Miller Bros. cigar store, the Harry Thometz and E. B. Connor saloons, Delaney and Murphy cigar store, Grand hotel, Gazette bulletin board on South River street, and on the advertising screen operated by Ben Louthain on Milwaukee street bridge. The news was also read at the session of the Twilight club at the Y. M. C. A. banquet hall and to the Spanish war veterans who were holding a special meeting. Bulletins were also posted at Broadhead, Evansville, Edgerton and Milton Junction.

Last night's early bulletins received by the Gazette told practically all that there was to know regarding the first clash between the Americans and Huerta's troops. The morning Chicago and Milwaukee papers had little to offer in addition.

WHAT'S NEXT IN MEXICO?

Mexico, torn by forty-six revolts in the last 113 years, now faces trouble with its most powerful neighbor. Of these revolts twenty-two have been successful in themselves and disastrous for the men who led them. Three of these leaders were forced to flee the country and two of them, Vincento Guerrero and Francisco Madero, were assassinated. The successful revolutions were:

February 24, 1821—Spain loses Mexico and Augustin de Iturbide elected president—regent twice and in 1822 crowned emperor.

May 1, 1823—Emperor Iturbide defeated by Santa Ana.

January 12, 1829—Revolution headed by Santa Ana results in election of President Guerrero and his inauguration in April.

December 4, 1829—Revolt by General Bustamante results in his election as president a year later.

December, 1832—Santa Ana revolts against Bustamante and Manuel G. Pedraza is made president.

December, 1833—Two-year revolution led by Santa Ana results in his being declared dictator.

April 29, 1837—General Bustamante appeals to people and is elected president after several small uprisings.

July 15, 1840—Mexico City entered by General Urrea, who proclaimed himself president.

August 8, 1841—Revolt led by General Paredes results in issuance by him of final pronouncement against Bustamante.

December 6, 1844—General Herrera assumes government.

December 14, 1845—General Paredes deposes President Herrera.

August 4, 1846—General Jose M. Salas ousts Paredes.

July 27, 1852—Revolt started by General Blancarte and return of Santa Ana as president is announced. President Arista resigns the following year.

General revolt shakes the country and Santa Ana flees.

October 4, 1855—General Juan Alvarez made president and succeeded by Ignacio Comonfort.

January, 1858—Comonfort is betrayed by his friend, Zuluaga, who becomes president when Comonfort flees.

1861—Benito Juarez returns to Mexico, leads revolt and becomes president.

November, 1861—Maximilian proclaimed emperor upon the landing of the French.

July, 1867—Juarez leads another successful uprising and again becomes president.

1868—Revolt headed by Porfirio Diaz ends in death of Juarez.

November 16, 1876—Diaz assumes presidency.

November 6, 1911—Revolt against Diaz led by Francisco Madero, who becomes president.

February 18, 1913—Victoriano Huerta proclaimed president after the fall of Diaz.

February 23, 1913—Madero assassinated, supposedly by Huerta's henchmen.

April 9, 1914—Assistant United States paymaster and complement of men from the gunboat Dolphin arrested by Huerta officers at Tampico. Apology demanded, but not forthcoming.

April 14, 1914—Two fleets of United States battleships ordered to Mexican waters.

April 19, 1914—Huerta defies the United States and President Wilson decides on war measures.

April 21, 1914—Congress authorizes President Wilson to use armed forces in Mexico.

CLASS DECIDES NOT TO PRESENT A PLAY

BIG MUSICAL PROGRAM WILL TAKE PLACE OF ANNUAL PLAY FOR FIRST TIME.

THREE DAYS' PROGRAM

Majestic Pageant Will be Held As in Past Years—Graduation Night Comes on the 11th of June.

The abolition of the annual class play, which has been the main attraction at the graduation exercises held under the auspices of the senior graduating classes at the Janesville high school, was brought about yesterday at a meeting of the senior class, following the action taken by the school board a few months past.

The play will be substituted by a feature musical program to be given by members of the senior class, who are musicians, and also by the orchestra and glee clubs at the school. The class believe they can produce a program which will meet with the entire satisfaction of those who attend. The play will be missed especially this year, because it is the first time in a great many years, that graduate exercises will be given on the 11th of June.

The musical program, will in all probabilities come on the first night of the three day program, or June the 9th. On the 10th, in the afternoon, the plan is to present a pageant, and on the same natural amphitheatre, in the rear of the Court House park, where the previous May fete were held. The May Pole dance will be on the program, and the Queen procession, and foreign dances.

On Thursday night, the eleventh, graduation night will come, when the seniors will receive their diplomas. On Friday, the class prophecies, poem, will, token, and history, if these are later decided on, will come on this night.

There will be more seniors taking part in the various exercises this year than in the past. Taking out the play, which would have made up the play cast, and placing them in other parts, the program will be considerably lengthened, especially on the last night. More girls will be in the pageant, and this increase alone, should be a great help in making this season's May Day Festival a grand success.

Duty Plain.

You know your duty. No man ever looked for it and did not find it—Philips Brooks.

SOUTH FULTON

South Fulton, April 21.—All farmers about here are anxious to get their grain in as soon as possible owing to the late season.

The Kraske children are able to be out again after their recent attack of the chicken-pox.

The Misses Lenore Cadman and Lydia Sommerfeld visited the latter's sister in Milwaukee over Saturday and Sunday.

A full attendance is desired at Sunday school next Sunday to complete plans for the contest which will start a week from that day, May 3. The boys will come to the contest.

James Thomson delivered his last past week to Mr. Bertram of Edgerton.

Pauline Becker visited from Friday until Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Grunzel.

House-cleaning seems the order of the day among the housewives in this vicinity.

Mr. Ross Keller is suffering from an attack of appendicitis.

Ferdinand and Carl Krause visited friends near Albion, Sunday.

HOW RESINOL CLEARS AWAY UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, or complicated "beauty treatments."

See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals skin humors. Resinol Ointment and Soap sold by all druggists. For free trial size, write Dept. KK, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way, when the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

CITY SCHOOLS WILL OBSERVE ARBOR DAY

Graded Schools Will Hold Short Programs in Morning, And Then Be Dismissed and Put to Work.

CAINVILLE CENTER

Cainville Center, April 20.—Mrs. Jennie Thompson of this city and Mrs. Chas. Stewart of Janesville, were short visitors Arbor Day programs, which will be given by members of the senior class, who are musicians, and also by the orchestra and glee clubs at the school. The class believe they can produce a program which will meet with the entire satisfaction of those who attend. The play will be missed especially this year, because it is the first time in a great many years, that graduate exercises will be given on the 11th of June.

Mrs. Albert Duchow and children are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Passell.

SPANISH WAR VETS PREPARE TO ENLIST IF SERVICE IS NEEDED

Decide, However, Not to Go as an Organized Body, But Will Enlist as Individuals.

Members of the Harry L. Gifford Camp 23 of the United Spanish War Veterans are ready to do everything in their power to aid the government in the present Mexican crisis. This is the decision reached last evening at a special meeting held for this purpose which was attended by almost every member of the camp.

It was, however, decided not to seek to organize a company in Janesville, but that the individual members of the camp would enlist in various militia companies throughout the state or in the regulars if an urgent call for recruits is issued. The men also resolved their oath of allegiance to the United States government and listened to inspiring and patriotic speeches by the various officers of the camp.

Another important matter was brought up for consideration and resolutions were passed inviting the members of William H. Sargent Post of the Grand Army of the Republic to become honorary members of the United Spanish War Veterans Association.

This movement is nation-wide today, and practically every city of importance where both organizations are installed just such a unity is taking place.

The Spanish War Veterans' committee on this movement will be present at the next regular meeting of the G. A. R. at which time the invitation for becoming honorary members in their order will be extended.

Appeal to Family Pride.

"We will now take up our annual collection for the benefit of the heathen," announced the Rev. Dr. Fourthly at the close of his sermon, "and I hope those young men in the back seats who have been making so much noise all through this service will be especially liberal in their contribution. They are in duty and honor bound to help their brother heathens."

My Duty to My Neighbor.

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good—myself; but my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy, if I may.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

On The Spur of The Moment

The Easter Bonnet. Where lies hid the Latin text, And smile wreathed the altar, Over sacred psalm and psalter, And all the font was pink and white, With roses strewn upon it, He saw a little maid in gray, Who wore an Easter bonnet.

He walked behind her from the church, And viewed her girlish graces, And breathed the vague, delicious scent Of dainty bows and laces. A prayer book was in her hand— She kept her glances on it, Till came a gust of frolic wind, And whisked away her bonnet.

Here eyes were full of April tears, Her scarlet lips were smiling; Her sunny curls about her brow Were made for man's beguiling; Her face was like a dewy rose; He turned to gaze upon it, And found that he had lost his heart, As she had lost her bonnet.

But now spray of orange flowers It wreathed about the Latin; The little maid is all in white— A dream of lace and satin. And as he takes her slender hand, And slips the ring upon it, He murmurs softly in her ear— A blessing on the bonnet!

WHEN SKIN BREAKS OUT OR ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR SAYS AN OUNCE OF BOLD-SULPHUR CREAM WILL DRY ANY ECZEMA ERUPTION RIGHT UP

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream, apply it to the irritated parts, the same as you would any cold cream. For many years common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasitic, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin. This is published for Walter Luther, Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

International Motor Trucks

"LAST fall we handled nearly our entire fruit crop with an International Motor Truck, the truck readily doing as much as two teams. For a period of nearly three months the truck was on the road six days a week, averaging about forty miles a day over all kinds of roads. It appears to be in as good shape now as the day we brought it home. The machine is a money maker as well as a time saver for us."

A Corn Planter That Almost Thinks Earns Cost in One Season—Come in and See It

We are agents for this wonderful machine—a planter that enables you to realize on every atom of soil-nourishment. It increases the size of your crop—it increases the value of the land. Earns cost in single season—cuts down labor—saves time—so simple in construction, so durable in its vital parts that it can be operated successfully by anyone.

Plants Evenly Regardless of Speed

This machine solves the entire problem. No matter how fast or how slow your horses walk, the distance between each hill is always the same. This is accomplished by a positive force feed valve that regulates the drop. This means straight rows. Seeds are chosen, counted and planted with all the dexterity and accuracy of the human fingers. Every hill gets the number of seeds you want. This accuracy of drop is the result of over 25 years' actual experience. Tests prove this accuracy unequalled. Furthermore, the Rock Island No. 1 has a marvelous

Perfect Convertible Drop

You don't have to lose time and temper when you want to shift from the use of flat seeds to round seeds. No trouble.

Trouble-Proof Clutch

Scores of owners of good-looking planters have been doomed to disappointment by the clutch—but not with ours. As the clutch is usually the first part to give trouble, we put a trouble-proof clutch on the Rock Island No. 1. It is the only automatic driving clutch and variable device that will successfully stand use and abuse.

Inspect this marvelous planter the next time you are in town. Better make it your special business to see us at once.

If you don't want to buy, no harm done; if you do want to buy, we will make you a right price.

OLD PEOPLE GAIN

Strength by Taking Vinol. Here is Proof.

So many cases like this are constantly coming to our attention that we publish it for the benefit of others:—Mr. John Widmayer of Jackson, Mich., says: "I am nearly 70 years of age, and was in a feeble condition but Vinol has done wonders for me. It is the best medicine to create strength I have ever seen and I have taken a good many of them. Last spring I was run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon regained my strength. Vinol is certainly an invigorating tonic for old people."

It is the medicinal curative elements of the cod livers without oil aided by the blood-making and strengthening properties of tonic iron which are contained in Vinol that makes it so efficient in such cases.

If you have an aged father, mother or anyone in your family who needs a strength-creating tonic, try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to benefit. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis. P. S. For itching, burning skin try our Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

AID THE KIDNEYS

Do Not Endanger Life When a Janesville Citizen Shows You the Way to Avoid It.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a tested remedy is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in kidney trouble over 30 years, have made neglect dangerous. Read the following testimonial from a man who has tested thousands of cases.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, act now. Doan's or Bright's disease may set in. This is Janesville testimony.

Mrs. Otto Bork, 629 So. Main St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Every once in a while I suffer from attacks of backache. It hurt me to lift anything. I had headaches and nervous spells. I heard people speak so highly of Doan's Kidney Pills that I decided to take them. They did me a great deal of good. The nervous spells left me and I was rid of backache and pains through my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills have such good results in my case that I strongly recommend them."

The Valiants of Virginia

By Halie Ermine Rives
Chas. Post Winkler
Illustrated by Laura Root

Copyright, 1914, by Bobbie Merrill Co.

Presently, his brows frowning heavily, he spread out the crumpled paper and reread it with bitter slowness, weighing each phrase. "Something which she had learned since she last saw him, which lay between them." She had not known it, then, last night, when they had kissed beside the sundial! She had loved him then! What could there be that thrust them irrevocably apart?

Without stopping to think of the darkness or that the friendly doors of the edifice would be closed, he caught up his hat and went swiftly down the drive to the road, along which he plunged breathlessly. The blue star-spangled sky was now streaked with clouds like faded orchids, and the shadows on the uneven ground under his hurried feet made him giddy. Through the din and hurly-burly of his thoughts he was conscious of dimly moving shapes across fences, the sweet breath of cows, and a negro pedestrian who greeted him in passing. He was stricken suddenly with the thought that Shirley was suffering, too. It seemed incredible that he should now be raging alone a country road at nightfall to find something that so horribly hurt them both.

It was almost dark—save for the starlight—when he saw the shadow of the square ivy-grown spire rearing stark from its huddle of foliage against the blurred background. He pushed open the gate and went slowly up the worn path toward the great iron-bound and hooded door. Under the larches on either hand the outlines of the gravestones loomed pallidly, and from the bell tower came the faint inquiring cry of a small owl. Valiant stood looking about him. What could he learn here? He read no answer to the riddle. A little to one side of the path something showed snowlike on the ground, and he went toward it. Nearer, he saw that it was a mass of flowers, starting up whitely from the semi-obscurity from within an iron railing. He bent over, suddenly noting the scent; it was cape jessamine.

With the curious sensation of almost prescience plucking at him, he took a box of vestas from his pocket and struck one. It flared up illuminating a flat granite slab in which was cut a name and inscription:

EDWARD SASSON.
"Forgive us our trespasses."
The silence seemed to crash to earth like a great looking-glass and shiver into a million pieces. The wax dropped from his fingers and in the supervening darkness a numb fright gripped him by the throat. Shirley had laid these there, on the grave of the man his father had killed—the cape jessamine she had wanted that day, for her mother! He understood.

It came to him at last that there was a chill mist groping among the trees and that he was very cold.

He went back along the Red Road stumbingly. Was this to be the end of the dream, which he had fancied would last forever? Could it be that she was not for him? Was it no hoary lie that the sins of the fathers were visited upon the third and fourth generation?

When he re-entered the library the candle was guttering in the burned wings of a night-moth. The place looked all at once gaunt and desolate and despoiled. What could Virginia, what could Damory Court, be to him without her? The wrinkled note lay on the desk and he bent suddenly with a sharp catching breath and kissed it. There welled over him a wave of rebellious longing. The candle spread to a hazy yellow blur. The walls fell away. He stood under the moonlight, with his arms about her, his lips on hers and his heart beating to the sound of the violins behind them.

He laughed—a harsh wild laugh that rang through the gloomy room. Then he threw himself on the couch and buried his face in his hands. He was still lying there when the misty rain-wet dawn came through the shutters.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Coming of Great King.
It was Sunday afternoon, and under the hemlocks, Rickey Snyder had gathered her mission—a dozen children from the nearby houses with the usual sprinkling of little blacks from the kitchens. There were parents, of course, to whom this mingling of color and degree was a matter of conventional prohibition, but since the advent of Rickey, in whose soul lay a Napoleonic instinct of leadership, this was more honored in the breach than in the observance.

"My! Ain't it scrumptious here now!" said Cozy Cabell, hanging yellow lady-slippers over her ears. "I wish we could play here always."

"Mr. Valiant will let us," said Rickey. "I asked him."

"Oh, he will," responded Cozy gloomily, "but he'll probably go and marry somebody who'll be mean about it." "Everybody doesn't get married," said one of the Byloe twins, with masculine assurance. "Maybe he won't."

"Much a boy knows about it!" retorted Cozy scornfully. "Women have to, and some one of them will make him. (Greenville Female Seminary Simms, if you slap that little nigger again, I'll slap you!)"

Greenie rolled over on the grass and tittered. "Miss Mattie Sue didn't," she said. "Ah beah huh say de yuddah day er wuz er moughty good feelin' ter go ter baid Mistis en git up Mars taid!"

"Well," said Cozy, tossing her head till the flower earrings danced, "I'm going to get married if the man hasn't got anything but a character and a red mustache. Married women don't have to prove they could have got a husband if they had wanted to."

"Let's play something," proposed Rosebud Meredith, on whom the discussion palled. "Let's play King, King Katiko."

"It's Sunday!"—this from her smaller and more righteous sister. "We're forbidden to play anything but Bible games on Sunday, and if Rosebud does, I'll tell."

"Jay-bird tattle-tale!" sang Rosebud derisively. "Don't care if you do!"

"Well," decreed Rickey. "We'll play Sunday school then. It would take a saint to object to that. I'm superior."

He Bent Over, Suddenly Noting the Scent; It Was Cape Jessamine.

tendent and this stump's my desk. All you children sit down under that tree."

They ranged themselves in two rows, the white children, in clean Sabbath pinafores and go-to-meeting knickerbockers, in front and the colored ones, in gingham and cotton-prints, in the rear—the habitual expression of a differing social station. "Oh!" shrieked Miss Cabell, "and I'll be Mrs. Merryweather Mason and teach the infants' class."

"There isn't any infant class," said Rickey. "How could there be when there aren't any infants? The lesson is over and I've just rung the bell for silence. Children, this is Missionary Sunday, and I'm glad to see so many happy faces here today. Cozy, say a reciting, 'you can be the organist if you want to.'"

"I won't," said Cozy sullenly. "If I can't be table-cloth, I won't be dish-rag."

"All right, you needn't," retorted Rickey frezingly. "Sit up, Greenie. People don't lie on their backs in Sunday-school."

Greenie yawned dismally, and righted herself with injured slowness. "Ah diffuses ter 'cep' yo' insult, Rickey Snyder," she said. "Ah'd ruther lose mah 'ligion dan mah laziness. En Ah 'splices yo' spissable dissention!"

unmoved, "and sing 'Kingdom Coming.' And she struck up lustily, beating time on the stump with a stick, and the rows of children joined in with unctious, the colored contingent coming out strong on the chorus:

De yert shall be full ob de wundrful story
As watahs dat covah de sea!

The clear voices in the quiet air startled the fluttering birds and sent a squirrel to the tip-top of an oak, from which he looked down, stirring his brush. They roused a man, too, who had lain in a sudden sleep under a bush at a little distance. He was ragged and soiled and his heavy brutal face, covered with a dark stubble of some days' growth, had an ugly scowl slanting back from cheek to hair.

Without getting up, he rolled over to command a better view, and set his eyes, blinking from their slumber, on the children.

"We will now take up the collection," said Rickey. ("You can do it, June. Use a flat piece of bark.") Remember that what we give today is for the poor heathen in—in Alabama."

The bark-slab made its rounds, relieving leaves, acorns, and an occasional pin. Midway, however, there arose a shrill shriek from the bearer and the collection was scattered broadcast. "Rosebud Meredith," said Rickey witheringly, "it would serve you right for putting that toad in the plate if your hand would get all over warts! I'm sure I hope it will."

She rescued the fallen piece of bark and announced: "The collection this afternoon has amounted to a hundred dollars and seven cents. And now, children, we will skip the catechism and I will tell you a story."

Her auditors hunched themselves nearer, a double row of attentive white and black faces, as Rickey with a preliminary bass cough, began in a drawing tone whose mimicry called forth giggles of ecstasy.

"There were once two little sisters, who went to Sunday-school and loved their teacher ve-ery much. They were always good and attentive—not like that little nigger over there! The one with his thumb in his mouth! One was little Mary and the other was little Susy. They had a mighty rich uncle who lived in Richmond, and once he came to see them and gave them each a dollar. And they were ve-ery glad. It wasn't a mean old paper dollar, all dirt and creases; nor a battered whitey silver dollar; but it was a bright round gold dollar, right out of the mint. Little Mary and little Susy could hardly sleep that night for thinking of what they could buy with those gold dollars."

"Early next morning they went downtown, hand in hand, to the store, and little Susy bought a bag of goober-peas, and sticks and sticks of striped candy, and a limber jack, and a gold ring, and a waxdoll with a silk dress on that could open and shut its eyes."

"Huh!" said the captious Cozy. "You can't buy a wax doll for a dollar. My littlest, littlest one cost three, and she didn't have a stitch to her back!"

"Shut up!" said Rickey briefly. "Dolls were cheaper then." She looked at the row of little negroes, goggled at the vision of such largesse.

"What do you think little Mary did with her gold dollar? She loved dolls and candy, too, but she had heard about the poor-oor heathen. There was a tear in her eye, but she took the dollar home, and next day when she went to Sunday-school, she dropped it in the missionary-box."

"Little children, what do you reckon became of that dollar? It bought a big satchelful of tracts for a missionary. He had been a poor man with six children and a wife with a bone-felon on her right hand—not a child old enough to wash dishes and all of them young enough to fall in the fire—so he had to go and be a missionary. He was going to Alabama—to a cannibal island, and he took the tracts and sailed away in a ship that landed him on the shore. And when the heathen cannibals saw him they were ve-ery glad, for there hadn't been any shipwrecked sailors for a long time, and they were ve-ery hungry. So they tied up the missionary and gathered a lot of wood to make a fire and cook him."

"But it had rained and rained and rained for so long that the wood was all wet, and it wouldn't burn, and they all cried because they were so hungry. And then they happened to find the satchelful of tracts, and the tracts were ve-ery dry. They took them and stuck them under the wet wood, and the tracts burned and the wood caught fire and they cooked the missionary and ate him."

"Now, little children, which do you think did the most good with her dollar—little Susy or little Mary?"

The front row sniggered, and a sigh came from the colored ranks. "Dem ar' can'bals," gasped a dusky infant breathlessly. "—dey done eat up all dat candy and dem goober-peas, too!"

The inquiry was drowned in a shriek from several children in unison. They scrambled to their feet, casting fearful glances over their shoulders. The man who had been lying behind the bush had risen and was coming toward them at a slouching amble, one foot dragging slightly. His appearance, indeed, was enough to cause panic. With his savage face, set now in a grin, and his tramp-like costume, he looked fierce and animal-like. White and black, the children fled like startled rabbits, older ones dragging younger, without a backward look—all save Rickey, who stood quite still, her widening eyes fixed on him in a kind of blanched fascinated terror.

He came close to her, never taking his eyes from hers, then put his heavy grimy hand under her chin and turned her twitching face upward, chuckling.

"Ain't afeard, d—n me!" he said with admiration. "Wouldn't skeddaddle with th' fine folks' white-livered young 'uns! Know who I am, don't ye?"

"Greef King," Rickey's lips rather formed than spoke the name.

"Right. An' I know you, too. Got jes' th' same look ez when ye wuzn't no higher'n my knee. So ye ain't at 'Dome no mo', eh? Purkle an' fine tinning an' a eddication. Ho-ho! Goin' ter make ye another ladyless like the sweet duck-dovey that rescued ye from th' jovin' embrace o' yer fond step-parkin', eh?"

Little Laura, who had been listening closely, exclaimed with great earnestness: "Wouldn't it have been too bad if one of them dropped the glass?"

MAUKI

by JACK LONDON

He weighed one hundred and ten pounds. His hair was kinky and negroid, and he was black. He was peculiarly black. He was neither blue-black nor purple-black, but plum-black. His name was Mauki, and he was the son of a chief. He had three tambos. Tambo is Malaitian for tobacco, and is first cousin to that Polynesian word. Mauki's three tambos were as follows: First, he must never shake hands with a woman, nor have a woman's hand touch him or any of his personal belongings. Secondly, he must never eat clams nor any food from a fire in which clams had been cooked. Thirdly, he must never touch a crocodile, nor travel in a canoe that carried any part of a crocodile, even if only as large as a tooth.

Of a different black were his teeth, which were black-black, or perhaps better, tamp-black. They had been made so in a single night, by his mother, who had compressed about three or four pounds of material which was dug from the handlike back of Port Adams. Port Adams is a salt-water village on Malaita, and is the most savage island in the Solomon—so savage that no traders nor planters have yet gained a foothold on it; while, from the time of the earliest beche-de-mer fishers and sandalwood traders down to the latest labor recruiters equipped with automatic rifles and gasoline engines, scores of white adventurers have been passed out by tomahawks and a stoned Sater buller.

Mauki's ears were pierced, not in one place, nor two places, but in a score of dozen places. In one of the smaller holes he carried a sly pipe. The larger holes were too large for such use. The bowl of the pipe would have fallen through. In fact, in the largest hole in each ear he habitually carried a round wooden plug that was as thin as a needle and as long as a finger. Mauki was catholic in his tastes. In the various smaller holes he carried such things as tiny rifle cartridges, horseshoes, brass buttons, pieces of string, bits of coral, strips of green leaf, and in the cool of the day, scented flowers.

Mauki's father was chief over the village of Port Adams, and thus by birth a salt-water man, Mauki was half-savagish. He knew the way of the fishes and oysters, and the reef was an open book to him. Tambos, also, he knew. He learned to swim when he was a year old. At seven years he could hold his breath a full minute and swim straight down to bottom through thirty feet of water. And at seven years he was stolen by the bushmen, who carried even swim and who are afraid of salt water. Thereafter Mauki saw the sea only from a distance, through rifts in the jungle and from open spaces on the high mountain sides.

He became the slave of old Fanfoa, head chief over a score of scattered bush villages on the ranges of Malaita, the smoke of which, on calm mornings, is about the only evidence the seafaring white men have of the teeming interior population. For the whites do not penetrate Malaita.

When Mauki was a young man of seventeen, Fanfoa died of tobacco. He got dreadfully out of tobacco. It was hard times in all his villages. He had been a slave of a white man, and he was a laborer so small that a large schooner could not swing at anchor in it. It was surrounded by mangroves that overhung the deep water. It was a trap, and into the trap sailed two white men in a small ketch. They were after recruits, and they possessed much tobacco and trade goods, to say nothing of three rifles and plenty of ammunition. Now there were no salt-water men living at Fanfoa, and it was there that the bushmen could come down to the sea. The ketch did a splendid trade. It signed on twenty recruits the first day. Even old Fanfoa signed on. And that same day the score of new recruits chopped off the two white men's heads, killed the boat's crew, and burned the ketch.

Thereafter, and for three months, there was tobacco and trade goods in plenty and to spare in all the bush villages. Then came the man-of-war, that threw shells for miles into the hills, frightening the people out of their villages and into the deeper bush. Next the man-of-war sent landing parties ashore. The villages were all burned, along with the tobacco and trade goods.

It taught Mauki a lesson, but in the meantime he was out of tobacco. Also, his young men were too frightened to sign on with the recruiting vessels. That was why Fanfoa ordered his slave, Mauki, to be carried down and stowed on for half a case of tobacco advance, along with knives, axes, katfo and beads, which he would pay for with his toll on the plantations. Mauki was sorely frightened when they brought him on board the schooner. He was a lamb led to the slaughter.

White men were ferocious creatures. They had to be, or else they would not make a practice of venturing along the Malaita coast and into all harbors, two on a schooner, when each schooner carried from fifteen to twenty blacks as boat's crew, and often as high as sixty or seventy black recruits.

They would knock seven bells out of him if he did a certain thing, when he did that thing seven bells invariably were knocked out of him. Mauki did not know what seven bells were, but they occurred in beche-de-mer, and he imagined them to be the blood and teeth that sometimes accompanied the process of eating beche-de-mer. One other thing he learned: no boy was struck or punished unless he did wrong. Even when the white men were drunk, as they were frequently, they never struck unless a rule had been broken.

Mauki did not like the plantation. He hated work, and he was the son of a chief. Furthermore, it was ten years since he had been stolen from Port Adams by Fanfoa, and he was homesick. He was even homesick for the slavery under Fanfoa. So he ran away. He struck back into the bush, with the idea of working southward to the beach and stealing a canoe in which to go home to Port Adams. But the fever got him, and he was captured and brought back more dead than alive.

A second time he ran away, in the company of two Malaita boys. They got down the coast twenty miles, and were hidden in the hut of a Malaita freeman, who dwelt in that village. But in the dead of night two white men came, who were not afraid of all the village people and who knocked seven bells out of the three runaways, tied them like pigs, and tossed them into the whiteboat. But the man in whose house they had hidden—seven times seven bells must have been knocked out of him from the way the hair, skin and teeth flew, and he was discouraged for the rest of his natural life from harboring runaway laborers.

For a year Mauki toiled on. Then he was made a house boy and had good food and easy times, with light work in keeping the house clean and serving the white men with whisky and beer at all hours of the day and most hours of the night. He liked it, but he liked Port Adams more. He had two years longer to serve, but two years were too long for him in the throes of homesickness. He had grown wiser with his year of service, and being now a house boy, he had opportunity. He had the cleaning of the rifles, and he knew where the key to the storeroom was hung.

He planned the escape, and one night ten Malaita boys and one boy from San Cristoval sneaked from the barracks and dragged one of the whiteboats down to the beach. It was Mauki who supplied the key that opened the padlock on the boat, and it was Mauki who equipped the boat with a dozen Winchester, an immense amount of ammunition, a case of dynamite with detonators and fuse, and ten cases of tobacco. The northwest monsoon was blowing, and they fled south in the night time, hiding by day on detached and uninhabited islets, or dragging their whiteboat into the bush on the large islands. Thus they gained Guadalcanal, skirted the bay along it, and crossed the impassable Straits to Florida Island. It was here that they killed the San Cristoval boy, saving his head and cooking and eating the rest of him.

The Malaita coast was only twenty miles away, but the last night a strong current and battling winds prevented them from gaining across. Daylight found them still several miles from their goal. But daylight brought a cutter, in which were two white men who were not afraid of eleven Malaita men armed with twelve rifles.

Mauki and his companions were carried back to Tikiki, where lived the great white master of all the white men. And the great white master held a court, after which, one by one, the runaways were tied up and given twenty lashes each, and sentenced to a fine of fifteen dollars. Then they were sent back to New Georgia, where the white men knocked seven bells out of them all around and put them to work. But Mauki was no longer house boy. He was put in the road-building gang. The fine of fifteen dollars had been paid by the white men from whom he had run away, and he was told that he would have to work it out, which meant six months' additional toil. Further, his share of the stolen tobacco earned him another year of toil.

Port Adams was now three years and a half away, so he stole a canoe one night, hid on the islets in Mauping Straits, passed through the Straits, and began working along the eastern coast of Ysabel, only to be captured, two thirds of the way along, by the white men on Maringe Lagoon. After a week he escaped from them and took to the bush. There were no bush natives on Ysabel, only salt-water men who were all Christians. The white men put up a reward of five hundred sticks of tobacco, and every time Mauki ventured down to the sea to steal a canoe he was chased by the salt-water men.

Four months of this passed, when the reward having been raised to a thousand sticks, he was caught and sent back to New Georgia and the road-building gang. Now a thousand sticks are worth fifty dollars, and Mauki had to pay the reward himself, which required a year and eight months' labor. So Port Adams was now five years away.

His homesickness was greater than ever, and it did not appeal to him to settle down and be good; work out his four years, and go home. The next time he was caught in the very act of running away. His case was brought before Mr. Hareby, the island manager of the Moonglean Soap Company, who adjudged him an incorrigible. The company had plantations on the Santa Cruz Islands, hundreds of miles across the sea, and there it sent its Solomon Islands' laborers. And there Mauki was sent, though he never arrived. The schooner stopped at Santa Anna, and in the night Mauki swam ashore, where he stole two rifles and a case of tobacco from the trader and got away in a canoe to Cristoval.

Malaita was now to the north, fifty or sixty miles away. But when he attempted the passage he was caught by a light gale and driven back to Santa Anna, where the trader clapped him in irons and held him against the return of the schooner from Santa Cruz. The two rifles, the trader recovered, but the case of tobacco was charged up to Mauki at the rate of another year. The sum of years he now owed the company was six.

On the way back to New Georgia the schooner dropped anchor in Marau Sound, which lies at the southeastern extremity of Guadalcanal. Mauki swam ashore with handcuffs on his wrists and got away to the bush. The schooner went on, but the Moonglean trader offered a thousand sticks, and to him Mauki was brought by the bushmen with a year and eight months' tock on to his account. Again, and before the schooner called he got away, this time in a whiteboat accompanied by a case of the trader's tobacco. But a northwest gale wrecked him upon Tigi, where the Christian natives stole his tobacco and turned him over to the Moonglean trader who resided there. The tobacco the natives stole meant another year for him, and the tale was now eight years and a half.

"Well, send him to Lord Howe," said Mr. Hareby. "Bunster is there, and we'll let them settle it between them. It will be a case, I imagine, of Mauki getting Bunster, or Bunster getting Mauki, and good riddance in either event."

Nobody ever comes to Lord Howe, or Outing-Java, as it is sometimes called. Thomas Cook & Son do not sell tickets to it and tourists do not dream of its existence. Not even a white missionary has landed on its shore. Its five thousand natives are as peaceable as they are primitive. Yet they were not always peaceable. The "Sailing Directions" speak of them as hostile and treacherous. But the men who compile the "Sailing Directions" have never heard of the change that was worked in the hearts of the inhabitants, who, not many years ago, cut off a big bark and killed all hands with the exception of the second mate. This survivor carried the news to his brothers. The captains of three trading schooners returned with him to Lord Howe. They sailed their vessels right into the lagoon and proceeded to preach the white man's gospel that only white men shall kill white men, and that the lesser breeds must keep hands off.

The schooners sailed up and down the lagoon, harrying and destroying. There was no escape from the narrow sand circle, no bush to which to flee. The men were shot down at sight, and there was no avoiding being sighted. The villages were burned, the canoes smashed, the chickens and pigs killed, and the precious coconut trees chopped down. For a month the confusion continued, when the schooner sailed away; but the fear of the white men had been seared into the souls of the islanders and never again were they rash enough to harm one.

Max Bunster was the one white man on Moonglean, trading in the pay of the ubiquitous Moonglean Soap Company. And the company billeted him on Lord Howe, because, next to getting rid of him, it was the most out-of-the-way place to be found. That the company did not get rid of him was due to the difficulty of finding another man to take his place. He was a strapping big German, with something wrong in his brain. Semi-madness would be a charitable statement of his condition. He was a bully and a coward, and a thrice bigger savage than any savage on the island. Being a coward, his brutality was of the cowardly order.

When he first went into the company's employ he was stationed on Savo. When a consumptive Colonial was sent to take his place, he beat him up with his fists and sent him off a wreck in the schooner that brought him.

Mr. Hareby next selected a young Yorkshire giant to relieve Bunster. The Yorkshire man had a reputation as a bruiser and preferred fighting to eating. But Bunster wouldn't fight. He was a regular little lamb—for ten days, at the end of which time the Yorkshire man was prostrated by an attack of fever. Then Bunster went for him, among other things getting him down and jumping on him a score or so of times. Afraid of what would happen when his victim recovered, Bunster fled away in a cutter to Guvutu, where he signaled himself by beating up a young Englishman already crippled by a Boer bullet through both hips.

Then it was that Mr. Hareby sent Bunster to Lord Howe, the falling-off place. He celebrated his landing by mopping up half a case of gin and by thrashing the elderly and wheezy mate of the schooner which had brought him. When the schooner departed he called the kanakas down to the beach and challenged them to throw him in a wrestling bout, promising a case of tobacco to the one who succeeded. Three kanakas he threw, but was promptly thrown by a fourth, who, instead of receiving the tobacco, got a bullet through his lungs.

And so began Bunster's reign on Lord Howe. Three thousand people lived in the principal village; but it was deserted, even in broad day, when he passed through. Men, women and children fled before him. Even the dogs and pigs got out of the way, while the king was not above hiding under a mat. The two prime ministers lived in terror of Bunster, who never discussed any moot subject, but struck out with his fists instead.

Mauki had no idea of the sort of master he was to work for. He had had no warnings, and he had concluded, as a matter of course, that Bunster would be like other white men, a drinker of much whisky, a ruler and a lawgiver who always kept his word and who never struck a boy undeserved. Bunster had the advantage. He knew all about Mauki, and gloated over the coming into possession of him. The last cook was suffering from a broken arm and a dislocated shoulder, so Bunster made Mauki cook and general house boy.

And Mauki soon learned that there were white men and white men. On the very day the schooner departed he was ordered to buy a chicken from Samsee, the native Tongan missionary. But Samsee had sailed across the lagoon and would not be back for three days. Mauki returned with the information. He climbed the steep stairway (the house stood on piles twelve feet above the sandy) and entered the living room to report. The trader demanded the chicken; Mauki opened his mouth to explain the missionary's absence. But Bunster did not care for explanations. He struck out with his fist. The blow caught Mauki on the mouth and lifted him into the air. Clear through the doorway he flew, across the narrow veranda, breaking the top railing, and down to the ground. His limbs were confused, shapeless mass, and his mouth was full of blood and broken teeth.

"That'll teach you that back talk don't go with me," the trader shouted, purple with rage, peering down at him over the broken railing. Mauki had never met a white man like this, and he resolved to walk small. He saw the boat boys, knocked about and one of them put in irons for three days, with nothing to eat for the crime of breaking a rowlock while pulling. Then, too, he heard the gossip of the village and learned why Bunster had taken a third wife—by force, as was well known. The first and second wives lay in the graveyard, under the white coral sand, with slabs of coral rock at heads and feet. They had died, it was said, from beatings he had given them. The third wife was certainly ill-used, as Mauki could see for himself.

But there seemed no way by which to avoid offending the white man, who seemed offended with life. When Mauki kept silent he was struck and called a sullen brute. When he spoke he was struck for giving back talk. When he was grave, Bunster accused him of plotting and gave him a thrashing in advance; and when he strove to be cheerful and to smile, he was charged with sneering at his lord and master and given a taste of stick. Bunster was a devil. The village would have done for him, had it not remembered the lesson of the three schooners. It might have done for him anyway, if there had been a bush to which to flee. As it was, the murder of the white man of any white man, would bring a man-of-war that would kill the offenders and chop down the precious coconut trees. Then there were the boat boys, with minds fully made up to drown him by accident at the first opportunity to capsize the cutter. Only Bunster saw to it that the boat did not capsize.

Mauki was of a different breed, and escape being impossible while Bunster lived, he was resolved to get the white man. The trouble was that he could never find a chance. Bunster was always on guard. Day and night his revolver was ready to hand. He permitted nobody to pass behind his back, as Mauki learned after having been knocked down several times. Bunster knew that he had more to fear from the good-natured, even sweet-faced, Malaita boy than from the entire population of Lord Howe; and it gave zest to the programme of torment he was carrying out. And Mauki walked small, accepted his punishments, and waited.

All other white men had respected his tambos, but not so Bunster. Mauki's weekly allowance of tobacco was two sticks. Bunster passed them to his women natives use it as a wood fire in smoothing down canoes and paddles. Bunster had a mitten made of ray-fish skin. The first time he tried it on Mauki, with one sweep of the hand it fetched the skin off his back from neck to arm pit. Bunster was delighted. He gave his wifery taste of the mitten, and tried it thoroughly on the boat boys. The prime ministers came in for a stroke each, and they had to grin and take it for a joke. "Laugh, curse you, laugh!" was the cue he gave.

Mauki came in for the largest share of the mitten. Never a day passed without a caress from it. There were times when the loss of so much article kept him awake at night, and often the half-healed surface was itched raw afresh by the facetious Mr. Bunster. Mauki continued his patient wait, secure in the knowledge that sooner or later his time would come. And he knew just what he was going to do when the time did come.

One morning Bunster got up in a mood for knocking seven bells out of the universe. He began on Mauki and wound up on Mauki in the interval knocking down his wife and hammering all the boat boys. At breakfast he called the coffee boys and threw the scalding contents of the cup into Mauki's face. By ten o'clock Bunster was shivering with age, and half an hour later he was burning with fever. It was an ordinary attack. It quickly became paralytic, and developed into black-water fever. The days passed, and he grew weaker and weaker, never leaving his bed. Mauki waited and watched, the while his skin grew intact once more. He ordered the boys to beach the cutter, scrub her bottom, and give her a general overhauling. They thought the order emanated from Bunster, and they obeyed. But Bunster at the time was lying unconscious and giving no orders. This was Mauki's chance, but still he waited.

When the worst was past, and Bunster lay comatose and conscious, but weak as a baby, Mauki packed his few trinkets, including the katfo cap handle, into his trade bag. Then he went over to the village and interviewed the king and his two prime ministers.

"This fella Bunster, him good fella you like too much?" he asked.

"They explained in one voice that they liked the trader not at all. The ministers poured forth a recital of all the indignities and wrongs that had been heaped upon them. The king broke down and wept. Mauki interrupted, rudely:

"You save me—a big fella marster my country. You no like in this fella white marster. Me no like 'im. Plenty good you put hundred coconut, two hundred coconut, three hundred coconut along cutter. Him finish, you go sleep 'in good fella. Bime by big fella noise alone house, you no save hear 'in that fella noise. You altogether sleep strong fella too much."

In like manner Mauki interviewed the boat boys. Then he ordered Bunster's wife to return to her family house. Had she refused he would have been in a quandary, for his wife would not have permitted him to lay hands on her.

The house deserted, he entered the sleeping room, where the trader lay in a doze. Mauki first removed the revolver, then placed the ray-fish mitten on his hand. Bunster's first warning was a stroke of the mitten that removed the skin the full length of his nose.

"Good fella, eh?" Mauki grinned, between two strokes, one of which swept the forehead bare and the other of which cleaned off one side of his face. "Laugh, curse you, laugh!"

Mauki did his work thorough, and the katfo handle, hiding in their houses, used the fella noise!

But Bunster made and continued to make for an hour or more. When Mauki was done, he carried the boat compass and all the rifles and ammunition down to the cutter, which he proceeded to ballast with cases of tobacco. It was while engaged in this that a hideous, shal-less thing came out of the house and screaming down the beach till it fell in the sea, and mauled and gibbered under the scorching sun. Mauki looked toward it and hesitated. Then he went over and removed the head, which he wrapped in a mat and stowed in the starboard locker of the cutter.

So soundly did the kanakas sleep through that long hot day that they did not see the cutter run out through the passage and head south, close-hauled on the south-east trade, with the cutter crew asleep on board. Nor was the cutter ever sighted on that long tack to the shores of Ysabel, and during the tedious head-beg from there to Malaita. He landed at Port Adams with a wealth of rifles and tobacco such as no one man had ever possessed before. But he did not stop there. He had taken a white man's head, and only the bush could shelter him. So back he went to the bush villages, where he shot old Fanfoa and half a dozen of the chief men, and made himself chief over all the villages. Then his father died. Mauki's brother ruled in Port Adams, and joined together salt-water men and bushmen, the resulting combination was the strongest of the ten-score fighting tribes of Malaita.

More than his fear of the British Government was Mauki's fear of the all-powerful Moonglean Soap Company; and one day a message came up to him in the bush, reminding him that he owed the company eight and one-half years' labor. Mauki sent back a favorable answer, and then appeared the inevitable white man, the captain of the schooner, the only white man during Mauki's reign who ventured the bush and came out alive. This man not only came out, but he brought with him seven hundred and fifty dollars in gold sovereigns—the money price of eight years and a half of labor plus the cost price of rifles and cases of tobacco.

Mauki no longer weighs one hundred and ten pounds. His stomach is three times its former girth, and he has four wives. He has many other things—rifles and revolvers, the handle of a katfo cap, and an excellent collection of human bones. Mauki is perfectly dried and cured, with sandy hair and a yellowish beard, which is kept wrapped in the finest of fiber lava-lava. When Mauki goes to war with villages beyond his realm he invariably returns with head and, along in his grass katfo conceals a long and solemn. At such times the hue of death takes a hold. The head is esteemed the most powerful devil on Malaita, and to the possession of it is ascribed all of Mauki's greatness.

and ordered Mauki to receive them from her hand. But this could not be, and Mauki went without his tobacco. In the same way he was made to miss many a meal, and to go hungry many a day. He was ordered to make chowder out of the big clams that grew in the lagoon. This he could not do, for clams were tambos. Six times in succession he refused to touch the clams, and six times he was knocked senseless. Bunster knew that the boy would die first, but called his refusal mutiny and would have killed him had there been another cook to take his place.

One of the trader's favorite tricks was to catch Mauki's kinky locks and bat his head against the wall. Another trick was to catch Mauki unawares and thrust the live end of a cigar against his teeth. This Bunster called vaccination, and Mauki was vaccinated a number of times a week. Once, in a rage, Bunster ripped the cap handle from Mauki's nose, bearing the hole clear out of the cartilage.

"Oh what a mug!" was his comment, when he surveyed the damage he had wrought. The skin of a shark is like sandpaper, but the skin of a ray fish is like a rasp. In the South Seas the
